

AT TOLEDO

Bryan and Johnson Have a Great Ovation.

Unprecedented Gathering of People Fill and Surround the Big Tent--Speeches by Bryan, Johnson and Bigelow That Thoroughly Arouse the Great Crowd.

Toledo, O., Sept. 15.—Tom L. Johnson, William Jennings Bryan, and Herbert S. Bigelow addressed fully 7,500 at the tent meeting Saturday night. Notable among the interesting features of the meeting was Mr. Bryan's warm praise of Mr. Johnson for his work in Ohio, amounting almost to an avowal on the part of Mr. Bryan that Cleveland's mayor is to be the "peerless leader" of the future. The crowd which was extremely enthusiastic and demonstrative cheered Mr. Bryan's remarks wildly, and Mr. Johnson was accorded one of the greatest ovations of his political career.

The circus tent was pitched in the Toledo base ball park, which is located near the heart of the city. The tent was backed up against a portion of the grand stand and the canvas lifted, so that these grand stand seats were included in the circus auditorium.

All the space within the tent was occupied, as well as all that portion of the stand which was within the range of the speakers' voices. It was one of the most notable political assemblages that Toledo has ever seen in spite of insufficient advertising and the brevity of time in which the local Democrats had to complete their arrangements.

A local committee escorted Mr. Bryan, Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Johnson from the hotel to the tent in carriages. The head of the delegation was M. D. McCarthy, who acted as president of the meeting. McCarthy was the Democratic candidate for attorney general last fall. After the applause which greeted the appearance of the candidates had subsided, McCarthy introduced Mr. Bigelow as first speaker. Before Mr. Bigelow could commence his talk Mayor Samuel M. Jones appeared upon the platform and was accorded a warm welcome.

"The people of Ohio," said Mr. Bigelow, "have reason not to be proud of their two senators, but they have two mayors of whom they may be justly proud. (Applause.) In this campaign," continued Mr. Bigelow, "we are not addressing ourselves to the Democrats of Ohio, but to the entire people. We believe that principles which we are advocating appeal as much to the Republicans as to the Democrats. No Republican can be in favor of unjust taxation, of boss rule in cities, of the reign of monopoly and special privilege. They cannot be in favor of these things because they are repugnant to the sense of justice and fair play which are implanted in the breasts of the people. The Republican masses cannot be in sympathy with the policies which the leaders have forced upon the party."

Mr. Bigelow reviewed the home rule issues and asked if the "free citizens" bow the neck like the submissive citizens on the banks of the Ohio and accept a Cox to rule over them." There were cries of "No. No." from every quarter of the tent.

Mr. Bigelow said that it is the aim of the Democratic party to equalize taxation all over the state and to lift its unjust burden from the common people.

Chairman McCarthy introduced Mayor Johnson as the "man whom you will know." Cleveland's "man of destiny" was greeted with an avalanche of lusty cheers.

"I have worn out my voice in a good cause," said the mayor. "If it lasts, I intend to teach the people of this state that there are some questions which pertain to politics, but settling your are above political lines. We wish to show the people of the state that it is their duty, in spite of their party antecedents to vote for the measures we advocate and to aid us by their ballots in the fight which we are agitating. It is our aim to be perfectly fair in this

Mr. Bryan said that the working classes are taxed on a basis of one dollar for every dollar they own, while the trusts pay taxes on one dollar of every $20 they own. He said the result of the election in Ohio this fall will not overturn the Administration or the Senate. He called upon the Republicans to exercise judgment in voting and not be bound by partisanship.

The tariff question was discussed to some extent. He said it was a war measure at first and when war was over and waning time for the tariff came the tariff people said they could not eat grass.

He said Republicans were crowded from one argument on the tariff question, until today they are without a plausible argument, when the Americans can undersell the products of European manufacturers.

"You good Republicans who are voting for the trust barons should remember that these trusts think more of the people of Europe than they do of you, because they charge you far bigger prices for the same articles than they do the English purchaser."

He declared that more righteous men could be found in Sodom and Gomorrah than men in the trusts who favor a reduction of the tariff. He said that the trusts are possibly good things, as they may teach the people to think through their stomachs when they do not think through their heads. He declared that Hanna recently stated that there are 95 per cent good trusts and only 5 per cent bad, and the Republican party spends its energies protecting this 95 per cent. There you have 19 to 1. That beats 16 to 1 all hollow.

"How about the full dinner pail and the coal miners in Pennsylvania?" asked a person in the audience.

Mr. Bryan said: "Hanna played a slick dodge on the working men in 1900 with his full dinner pail argument."

"Now they see the hollowness of Hanna's claim," said Mr. Bryan. "He said the Government by injunction plank cost him more votes among the monopolists than the free silver plank. He said we would run a big risk of destroying our own liberties in our attempt to take the liberties of others, such as the Filipinos and others. He advised the Republicans to vote the Democratic ticket this fall, so as to save their own party from future great humiliations."

Mr. Bryan spoke for an hour and a half, and was followed by Mayor S. M. Jones.

The applause that greeted Mayor Jones was deafening and as great as that given the previous speakers. Mr. Jones still stuck to "the man without a party," but declared that Mr. Johnson's ideas on taxation and home rule are in line with his own.

The crowd kept steadily increasing on the outside, until it reached fully 10,000 with those on the inside during Mr. Bryan's address. Mr. Bryan left at midnight on the C., H. and D. for Cincinnati on his way to Kentucky, where he will deliver a few addresses.

Two QUESTIONS.

Mayor Johnson closed the meeting by propounding the following two questions: which he asked to have answered on election day:

"1. Workingmen, are your dinner pails fuller or emptier than they were two years ago?"

"2. What per cent in increase of wages have you workmen received of the increased prices made by the trusts, the protected infants of the tariff?"

"Just write you answers and place them in the ballot box in November."

W. S. Stratton Dies.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 15.—William S. Stratton, the millionaire mining man, died at 3:30 o'clock last night.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth English dukes wore shoes three feet in length, the toe pointed and fastened up to the quarter with golden chains, to which little bells were attached.

German manufacturers of machinery have recently received orders for 100 locomotives, representing a value of 6,000,000 marks (nearly $1,500,000) which will go to Spain, Italy, India and Denmark.

So Thoughtful.

She—There, dear, haven't I been thoughtful of you and unsatisfied?

He—How?

She—Why, I kept all these bills of mine away from you until the middle of the month.—Detroit Free Press.

GRAY

Supreme Court Justice Dead.

He Passed Away at Nahant, Mass., Monday.

APPOINTED TO SUPREME COURT IN 1882.

HIS DEATH DUE TO PARALYSIS

For Years He Was Connected With Courts of Massachusetts—Born in Boston in 1828.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 15.—Justice Horace Gray of the United States Supreme court, died at Nahant today. Paralysis was the cause of death.

In the death of Justice Gray, the United States loses one of its oldest legal authorities. Justice Gray was born in Boston in 1828. He was graduated from Harvard in 1845. In 1851 he was appointed reporter of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts. In 1873 he became chief justice of the court. In 1882 he was appointed justice of the U. S. Supreme court.

INDIAN

Married by Iowa School Teacher--Prospective Husband Duped.

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 15.—Following the example of Cora Belle Fellows, the Washington society belle, who while teaching in a Dakota reservation school some years ago married a full-blooded Sioux Indian named Chaska, Miss Nellie M. Brown, for some time a teacher in the government Indian school at Crow Creek agency, has just been married to Fred Medicine Crow, an Indian belonging on the reservation.

The bride is good looking and highly educated. It is said her parents reside in Washington, and that they are prominent in the society circles of the national capital. The Indian and his white wife were married by Justice N. A. Keeler of Gann Valley, a town situated a few miles from the border of the reservation.

Clinton, Iowa, Sept. 15.—T. G. Wood, aged 80, of Northern Indiana, came here for the purpose of marrying J. Dobson, with whom he has been carrying on correspondence for a year. The woman secured $2,000 in greenbacks on an ante-nuptial contract and has disappeared. The acquaintance was brought about by a matrimonial agency.

QUEST FOR GOLD

Treasure Secreted by Idol Worshiping Indians Found by Exploring Party in the West.

Guthrie, Oklahoma, Sept. 15.—The story of an Ohio soldier who participated in the war with Mexico has stirred up the residents of Western Oklahoma until every male resident has become an ardent searcher for gold.

Wash Lindsey was a soldier in the Thirtieth Ohio Infantry during the Mexican war. In a skirmish he and eleven of his companions were separated from the regiment and in wandering fell in with a friendly Indian.

They proved to belong to a Mexican tribe of idol worshipers, and the twelve soldiers were soon aware of the location of a cave wherein were secreted a number of these idols, which were made of gold and silver and precious stones.

These idols have been hidden since the advent of the white man, and the Indians with them were guarded by the soldiers.

In some of the idols a knowledge of the cave and, securing the idols, the soldiers were able to find the whereabouts of the idols.

precious metal and started for the North.

While crossing Salt Fork creek at the point now known as Red Rock crossing, in Western Oklahoma, the soldiers discovered that they were being followed by the Indians and hid their treasure somewhere among the hills, continuing immediately on their way as though not aware of the approach of the red men.

They were overtaken near the stream where Jeff, O. T., now is located, and a desperate fight resulted between the twelve soldiers and a band of forty Indians.

With such odds against them the soldiers were soon overpowered and all were killed with the exception of Lindsay. He was severely wounded, but managed to get back to the old government trail, where he was picked up by a party of government freighters and taken back to Ohio.

Recently two farmers, in working near the creek, excavated a wheel from an old Spanish wagon and a skull with an arrow through it. This started the hunt for the treasure, and every portion of the canyons in that vicinity has been thoroughly searched several times. Now it is claimed that a recent exploring party has not been successful, but the particulars are being concealed until the fortunate parties have made good their find. Startling developments are expected.

CONDENSED

Telegrams to the Advocate From All Quarters, Boiled Down For Hurried Readers.

Postoffice at Arcadia, Ind., robbed Sunday night.

Revolution in interior of Colombia is quelled, cables Minister Harris. Troops will now be sent to the isthmus of Panama.

The Roosevelt are receiving people of Oyster Bay today. Four bands are playing and there is lemonade galore.

Sovereign grand lodge of I. O. O. F. convenes at Des Moines.

F. W. Reitz and Boer generals, Botha, Dewet and Delarey, sail for America Sept. 25 to lecture.

Four men hunt are in progress in Nebraska today. The objects of pursuit are C. Neigenfield, who shot his wife and Albert Broyer, Fred Corn who killed a sheriff, an unknown tramp who robbed Mrs. Ruth Fornell's house in Pance county, and assaulted and killed her, and another unknown who insulted a girl at Stanton county. Bloodhounds accompany each posse.

At Keystone, W. Va., within 24 hours, Nettie Price, 18, and Mrs. Lucy Jackson, both colored, were shot to death here by Richard Johns and Doc Parsons respectively.

MEETING

Of Ohio Conference of Women's Home Missionary Society--Newark People on Program.

The 18th annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Ohio Conference of the Methodist church will be held at the Columbus Broad street church, Thursday and Friday of this week. The program as announced includes a report of the Conference Secretary of Young People's Work, Mrs. C. F. Leaga of Newark, Thursday at 2 p. m., devotional services led by Miss Lucy Van Kirk of Granville Thursday evening, report of District Secretary Mrs. John Gohy of Newark Friday morning.

RELIEF CORPS.—The Woman's Relief Corps will not go to Mrs. Jones Thursday. There will be a call meeting at the Hall tomorrow at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

SETTLED.—The mid-summer tarding between Manager Rosebrough of the Auditorium and the state land, has been settled satisfactorily and all the old men have returned to work.

A recent cure for consumption advocated by an Irish physician, Dr. W. G. Linnah, is the inhalation of the vapor of garlic juice. The doctor claims that by this method he has effected a permanent cure.

FOREST FIRES

Are Costing Many Lives and Millions of Dollars.

Danger to Outlying Districts Continues--100 Believed to Have Perished--Hundreds of People Rendered Homeless--Appalling Losses Reported From the Far West.

Astoria, Oregon, Sept. 15.—Rain began to fall in northwestern Oregon this morning and it is expected that the forest fires will soon be extinguished.

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—Smoke from Oregon and Washington forest fires settled down so thickly throughout northern and central California as to completely obscure the sun. Lights are lit in San Francisco. The weather bureau stated that the smoke has now reached a distance of 1,000 miles inland and that it will travel across the continent.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 15.—The forest fires in Northwestern Oregon and Southern Washington continue with unparalleled fury, destroying the lives of people in small towns, threatening to ruin towns and cities and laying waste thousands upon thousands of acres of the richest timber lands. Conflagrations have made headway with amazing rapidity. While it is believed that they cannot further imperil the larger cities, the dangers to property in outlying districts continue.

The destruction of telegraph lines renders it difficult to obtain a correct estimate of the loss of life. From scant reports obtained it is thought that not less than 100 persons are dead.

The greatest loss of life appears to be along the Lewis river, where logging camps are numerous. Many perished with a mighty roar.

sons are known to have perished in that section and reports of additional fatalities are being received hourly.

Hundreds of residents in northern Oregon are homeless. The property loss in that state exceeds $1,000,000. First reports of the destruction of Palmer have been confirmed. The entire place is in ashes.

The thrilling flight of a party of refugees from White's Mills near Centralia, who were compelled to seek safety in a creek, remaining immersed more than hour, later rushing into a grotto, where a number of bears and deer had sought refuge in their terror is equalled only by the harrowing experience of the people residing between Ariel and Mt Helena. This entire section, 25 miles in length, was swept clear by the fires. The flames attacked the district unexpectedly during the night, driving the people from their homes in their night garments. For hours the race against death was kept up and when a place of safety was reached it was found that eleven of the party had perished.

It is feared that a party of sixty campers at the foot of Mt. Helena are among the dead.

Milo Dimmick, one of the party that found refuge in the creek, says that while immersed he witnessed one of the most appalling sights of his life. Great balls of fire, he said, rolled up like cannon balls and then burst with a mighty roar.

BRAVE FIGHT

Of Miners Will Fail Says Abram S. Hewitt.

Operators Make Gains at Tamaqua--More Violence at Wilkesbarre When Mob of 75 Attacks Non-Union Men--Italians Mistaken For Strikers at Scranton.

New York, Sept. 15.—Abram S. Hewitt who has defended the position of the anthracite operators, said today that the strike is disintegrating. He says:

"Miners have put up a brave fight but they will fail. They have used terrorism as their weapon and it will be the rock upon which they will stumble." He says the operators see the end of the strike and will make no concessions.

OPERATORS MAKE GAINS.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 15.—There was no violence in this region today. The operators made gains. Greenwood was being run in operation with 25 men and 10 deputies. The strikers were not allowed to approach the plant. The forces at North Main and Maple Hill washeries were defeated this morning. Sharp mountain washery will start tomorrow.

ASSAULTED BY STRIKERS.

Wilkesbarre, Sept. 15.—While on their way home to Pittston from their night's work, at 6:00 o'clock this morning John Gigano and a companion were held up by 75 strikers at Lackawanna. They ran as fast as possible. Both had gone but fifty yards when a bullet crashed into the head of Gigano. The mob then jumped on and kicked him. He was later taken to Pittston Hospital where he is in a critical condition. Seven shots in all were fired at Gigano and his companion but the latter fortunately escaped.

MISTAKEN FOR MINERS.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 15.—Today three Italians while on their way to work on a sewer were mistaken for non-union miners and assaulted by a crowd of strikers. One is reported dead. The other two have been taken to the hospital seriously hurt. Their names are unknown.

ICE IN OHIO.

Chardon, O., Sept. 15.—Ice formed Sunday thick enough to bear up poultry and small animals. The corn crop will be badly injured.

Fit.

Mrs. Giltedge—How do you like the new butler?

Giltedge—He's a peach! Made me feel at home at once.—Life.

Read Want Ads., page 5.

THE NEWARK DAILY ADVOCATE.

Published by the
ADVOCATE PRINTING COMPANY.
J. H. NEWTON, Editor.

C. H. SPENCER, Associate Editor.
A. H. PIERSON, Business Manager.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
Single copy 3 cents
Delivered by carrier, per week, 10 cents

IF PAID IN ADVANCE:
Delivered by carrier, one mo. $ 40
Delivered by carrier, six mo. 2 25
Delivered by carrier, one year 4 50
By mail, postage paid, one year. . 4 00

All subscribers who arrange to pay at the office are subject to a call from the collector if payment is not made when due.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET

For Secretary of State,
HERBERT S. BIGELOW, of Hamilton County

For Judge of the Supreme Court,
MICHAEL DONNELLEY, of Henry County.

For State Dairy and Food Commissioner,
PHILIP H. BRUCK, Franklin County.

For Member State Board of Public Works,
JOSEPH J. PATER, of Butler County.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

Probate Judge,
WALDO TAYLOR.

Sheriff,
WM. H. ANDERSON, Jr.

Prosecuting Attorney,
J. R. FITZGIBBON.

County Commissioner,
JOSEPH E. BROWNFIELD.

County Surveyor,
C. P. KNISELY.

Infirmary Director,
CHARLES S. HOWARD.

Coroner,
SCOTT J. EVANS.

CIRCUIT JUDICIAL TICKET.
For Circuit Judge,
S. M. DOUGLASS, of Mansfield.

Democratic Congressional Ticket.
For Congress,
JOHN W. CASSINGHAM, of Coshocton.

As To Quibbling And "Slippery Juggling."

Technical quibbling is the weapon of a pettifogger. But to meet the American-Tribune's quibble the Advocate will state in more precise, exact and definite terms that the successor to Commissioner Holton is to be elected this fall and the successor to Commissioner Pigg is to be elected next fall.

With equal accuracy it can be said that neither Commissioner Holton's nor Commissioner Pigg's terms of office will be either lengthened or shortened by the election of a Democrat or a Republican. Either one of them will go out of office just as quickly whether the elected successor shall be a Democrat or a Republican. These are facts that the A.-T. cannot dodge by technical quibblings or "slippery juggling."

Then, in all reason, fairness and candor, what truth or justice is there in the American-Tribune's campaign text that the election of Mr. Brownfield, the Democratic candidate for Commissioner will "continue" Commissioners Holton and Pigg "in office?"

Such campaign claptrap and falsehood will not deceive or influence fair-minded, intelligent voters.

"ME AND THE PUBLIC" ROYALTY.
(Mansfield Shield.)

President Roosevelt refused to shake hands with Postmaster Bagley at Zanesville, Ohio. But, then, he explained that the snub was not meant to hurt the postmaster's feelings, but that he should shake hands with him, he would be expected to shake hands with a lot of common people—and he could not stand that.

Only 49,746 acres of flax are being cultivated this year in Ireland, a decrease of 14.9 per cent on the figures for 1901.

THE CIRCUS.

(Toledo Bee.)

Well, the circus has come and gone. Tom Johnson has been here in his automobile, which the opposition organs call "the red devil." Parson Bigelow has preached red-hot and up-to-date gospel, and Bryan, the peevish one, has made another memorable speech.

And it was a good show. It cost the people nothing and they got more than their money's worth. It really was a remarkable meeting. Bryan's speech was the feature of the evening, although both of the other speakers made telling arguments. Tom Johnson pulled the throttle wide open and let the machine go down the track. But people were curious to hear what he had to say.

And he said it. He said it in the characteristic Johnsonian way that exasperates opposition. It is exasperating because he tells the truth and tells it in such a blunt and forcible manner that it goes home to his hearers and stays home with them.

Probably many were impelled by curiosity to go to the circus tent. Curiosity was a virtue in such a case. Those who came to scoff remained to cheer. Tom Johnson takes a truth and pounds it in. What he says is more impressive than his automobile and circus tent, but it is just as unconventional. The bosses of both parties have been saying conventional things for quite a while, and there has been a lavishness of words and a scarcity of sincerity. It's different now. Tom Johnson wastes no words, but he has ideas of justice and honesty that captivate. When he speaks people nod their heads in assent and say "he's right."

And he is right. That's the beauty of it. He is combating with the scribes and Pharisees, with the Philistines and the Iscariots, but he is guarded by the armor of righteousness and he fears not any man.

It is not Tom Johnson, but it is what he represents. It is not William Jennings Bryan nor Herbert S. Bigelow. The Declaration of Independence or the Constitution would have been as potent had they been written by Smith, Jones or Brown. The man who has principle and honesty in him and is able to advocate them, owes his greatness to what he has been endowed with rather than to himself.

Toledo was fortunate in hearing the men who spoke Saturday night. Circus it may have been in seeming, but the meeting was big with importance. True and earnest men told the truth. They are not sophists, and no matter what their methods they preached the gospel that is mighty and will prevail.

MACK SOUNDS AN ALARM.

(Sandusky Register, Rep.)

The Republican leaders should not waste valuable time ridiculing Tom Johnson's circus campaign. He will draw crowds, and he is no cheap talker. Bigelow has a fetching way with him and unless the Republican managers do something more than laugh, Johnson and Bigelow will do the laughing when the returns come in. The Republican party is "great in things done," and great in things said, but it has been defeated in Ohio in six general elections since 1860, and it might be defeated again. It is not wise to bank on the plurality of 60,000 for Nash. That can be wiped out, and the circus tent campaign is a shrewd dodge, and not to be sneered at, as the Republican leaders may discover when it is too late.

TEDDY'S DILEMMA.

(Marion Mirror.)

Mr. Roosevelt has evidently been deceiving the people or else he has been made to feel the power of the trusts, as his speeches are now indicating. Teddy is now "betwixt and between the devil and the deep blue sea."

They never speak.

"Yes," said the gig-gig girl, "Dick is very methodical. He gives me one kiss when he comes and two when he goes away."

"That's always been his way," returned her dearest friend. "I've heard lots of girls comment on it."

Thus it happens that they cease to speak to each other. —Chicago Journal.

Too Slow.

Messenger Boy—Lost my job, eh?

Ex-Office Boy—I got it up. It wuz all on account of de typewriter.

Messenger Boy—Didn't she like yer?

Ex-Office Boy—It wasn't a "she," but a "he." Dat wuz de troublest nobodys ter stirt wit. —Philadelphia Press.

Grove's Black Root Liver Pills.

Made from an active principle, obtained from Black Root. They act on the liver, equal to calomel, and have no bad after effects. No griping, no sick stomachs. Will cure chronic constipation. Price 25 cents.

MRS. DOLBY'S TALKS

CALLS THE DEACON TO ACCOUNT ABOUT CERTAIN THINGS.

He Is Wise, However, and Falls to Retaliate, Puncturing His Opponents In Thought While She Continues Her Rapid Fire Questions.

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

DEACON DOLBY had been down to the village store to get a quarter of a pound of the best tea, a bar of soap and two nutmegs. Upon his return he placed his purchases on the kitchen table and sat down and removed his shoes and stockings. It had occurred to him on his way home that his toe nails needed trimming, and he had opened his jack-knife and was prospecting around when Mrs. Dolby came in from calling.

"IT WAS FIVE CENTS TO BLOW THROUGH A NAIL."

at a neighbor's. She had something to say to him, and she didn't lose a minute in beginning. "I was just over to Mrs. White's to see if she was going to make soft soap next fall, and she felt it her duty to tell me what she saw last Tuesday afternoon. She is a woman who never gossips about any one, and she never tells anything unless she thinks it her duty as a Christian woman. Deacon, where were you last Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock?"

Deacon Dolby had begun the work of cutting off a generous section of his big-toe nail, and he paused in his work a moment and puckered his eyebrows in thought. Mrs. Dolby kept her eyes on him and waited, but he returned to the attack on the nail without having replied to her question.

"I can tell you where you were," she went on in an accusing voice. "There was a stranger in town with a lung testing machine. It was 5 cents to blow through a tube and test your lungs. You stood around awhile and then paid your money and blew. Mrs. White was passing at the time, and she says your eyes bulged out and your hair stood up and your face was as red as a beet. I remember that your face was still red when you got home, and I wondered if you had been rubbing it against the fence. Yes, you blew and blew and blew, and the man said your lungs were all right. Do you deny it, deacon?"

The deacon didn't. He had blown so hard that his heels were lifted off the ground and his necktie shoved up under his ears, but why affirm or deny?

"It isn't your blowing I complain of, but your display of selfishness. All you cared about were your own lungs. You never thought of mine. You didn't seem to care whether I had any lungs or not. You knew I had had a hacking cough for a year or two and that I had wanted a good deal, and yet you came sneaking home and never said a word. Mrs. White says you can't blame me for suspecting that you no longer care for me."

The deacon had now finished with the big toe, and as no direct question had been asked he did not feel called upon to discuss things in the abstract. One can't enter into a heated discussion and cut his toe nails at the same time.

"But we will let that go," said Mrs. Dolby after a minute—"we will let that go, and I will ask you if it is true that while you were down at the cooper shop the other day to get a new bung for our vinegar barrel there was a fight between a lightning rod man and a tin peddler. Mrs. Richmond says there was. She says these two men called each other liars and thieves and villains and finally pitched into each other and rolled all over the street. She was scared half to death, but she remembers seeing you there, and she says you just looked on and seemed to enjoy it. Is it true, or has she got things mixed up? It doesn't seem possible that I'm married to a man who'll stand by and see two human beings kicking and biting and scratching each other, but maybe it's true, deacon—maybe it's true."

While Mrs. Dolby was swallowing the lump in her throat and wiping away her tears the deacon shifted his feet to get at the other big toe and let his mind go back to the incident referred to. It was true that there was a fight between a lightning rod man and a tin peddler, followed by a fight in which the peddler got the best of it, but it had been a sudden affair, and no one had had time to interfere. As a deacon he would have mediated if there had been an opportunity; as a man he was glad that the peddler had licked. He did not give voice to his thoughts, however, but was industriously handling the lufe when Mrs. Dolby started off again.

"I don't want to accuse you of wrongdoing, and I don't want to say that it looks as if you were looking at it, but it was only a few days ago that I sent down to the store for a yard of black cambric. Mrs. Hanley was in the store buying ten yards of calico, and you sat down on the box while waiting. There was a nail in the box, and you jumped up with a whoop and danced around and said things. Mrs. Hanley won't tell me what you said. Every time I ask her she breaks down and cries. I have tried to get it out of you in your sleep, but you only groan and set your teeth and draw up your legs. Deacon Dolby, am I living with a pirate? Have you got to using such words as nobody hears except around a circus?"

The deacon could have made a defense. Any man who sits down on a wire nail is apt to use up suddenly and express his opinion in plain English, and any jury in the land will bring in a verdict of temporary insanity. The incident had come and gone, however, and why discuss it now, when he could not remember where he put in his exclamation points? He sharply parried away and ignored the question, and Mrs. Dolby heaved a sigh and observed:

"There is one more thing. The other day I asked you to whitewash the cellar. All cellars ought to be whitewashed at least once a year. It sweetens things up and keeps the bugs out. You didn't seem to want to do it, but you finally fixed up a pile of whitewash and went at it. You were working away when I went over to Mrs. Saunders' to see if she could lend me her flatirons next day. While I was gone a man called here to see about selling fruit trees. I was on my way back when he came out of the gate on the run, his face as white as a sheet. He gave me one look, but did not stop. That man was scared almost to death, deacon, and I want to know what scared him. What had he seen or heard?"

A smile crept over the deacon's face, and there was a chuckling noise in his throat, but he had just struck a broken nail and was too busy to stop and make explanations. "I may be wrong," said Mrs. Dolby—"I may be wrong and be doing you an injustice, but I think it was this way. I think you had got some whitewash in your eyes just as the man called, and I think you jumped up and down and said things again and he heard you. You may even have jumped for him and threatened his life. At any rate, it must have been something awful to scare a man like that. I shouldn't have been a bit surprised to hear that he had dropped dead. Deacon, what did you do? If you'll own up, and if it was not too bad, I'll forgive you, but you mustn't ever do it again."

The deacon had now finished the last toe, and the nails of the whole ten had been duly trimmed. He held out his feet for his own inspection, investigated a callous or two on his heels and then slowly and deliberately drew on his socks. When this had been accomplished, he looked up at the kitchen clock, picked up his shoes, and as he rose from his chair with a sigh of regret that he had no more toe nails to operate on, he remarked:

"I guess it's time to go to bed."

"One other thing, deacon, now that we are on the subject," said Mrs. Dolby, but she found herself alone with the cat and went no further.

M. QUAD.

Not In His Line.

"I hear that your son is quite a virtuoso," said Mrs. Oldcastle as she was being shown through the magnificent music room of the new neighbors.

"Oh, no," replied her hostess. "William isn't ever tried to learn that yet, although we may get him one some day if he shows a likin' for it. All he plays on so far, though, is the fiddle." —Chicago Record-Herald.

Had the Yellow Stain.

The emigrant commissioner looked up at the new arrival. His face was swathed in bandages.

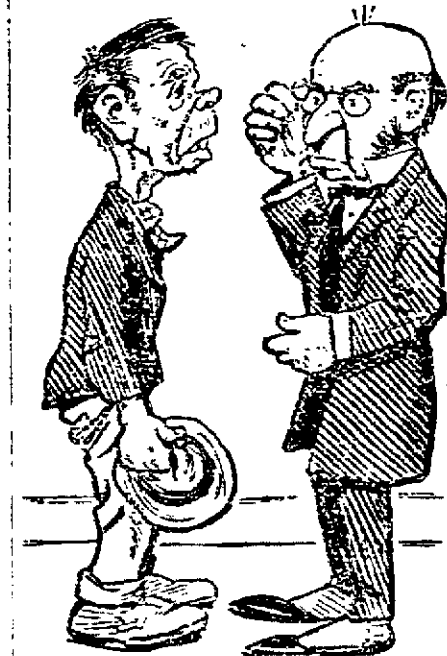

"Lemme see your hands," he said. The newcomer stretched them out. "Well," said the commissioner, with an ominous shake of his head, "you're either a Chinese or a cigarroot smoker, and we want neither of you." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Delicate Score.

"I observe that you invariably praise your rivals," said one actress.

"Yes," answered the other. "It's the wisest thing to do. It sounds magnanimous and also conveys the impression that you do not consider them worth being jealous of." —Washington Star.

Difficult to Diagnose.

Pat—I've got a pain in me side, doctor.

Doctor—Which side?

Pat—Inside or outside, doctor.

Papa's Prefect.

Her father, the storekeeper, said: "As the girl is old and thin, and she's a sickly thing, and that's a sight not of him."

The young man grabbed his overcoat, and he ran out of the door. He was a sickly thing, and that's a sight not of him. —Chicago News.

THE WHEELITTLES VISIT THE ANCIENT RUINS.

Find the man who plays the joke.

FULL TEXT

Of the Platform Adopted at the Democratic State Convention.

In state convention assembled, we, the Democrats of Ohio, hereby acknowledge and declare our continued allegiance to the Democratic party of the nation and on national issues reaffirm and endorse the principles laid down in its last national platform adopted at Kansas City, and which was fully and ably represented in the presidential campaign of 1900 by William Jennings Bryan. Regarding those principles as opposed to imperialism and colonialism, as opposed to government by injunction, as opposed to trusts and trust-fostering tariffs, as opposed to financial monopoly and as opposed to all other legalized monopolies and privileges, we condemn every effort to repudiate or ignore them.

In state and municipal affairs we pledge our party to a faithful application of those Democratic principles, to the end that the burdens of taxation may be equalized and home rule and local self-government be established and preserved.

REPUBLICANS ARRANGED.

Under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state monopoly has been fostered and protected; the farmer and the small home owners have been burdened with excessive taxes that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape them; public institutions have been waste fully and inefficiently managed and in them scandals and cruel wrongs have been practiced upon the defenseless wards of the state; the farmers and small shippers continue to suffer from unjust discrimination at the hands of unregulated monopoly; the fine system of municipal government has been wrecked and the credit of cities destroyed, thereby producing a spirit of insecurity and unrest in all public affairs. The people can no longer trust the administration of their affairs to a party thus recklessly devoted to interests adverse to the public welfare. As a more specific statement of our principles upon these and other public questions we declare:

TAXABLE PROPERTY.

1. That all taxable property should be appraised by assessing boards which should be in session for at least a part of each year and whose proceedings and deliberations should be open to the public; that power be given to employ a representative to present the interests of the public in hearings before these boards and that in making assessments all property should be appraised at not less than its salable value.

2. That the present laws for assessing the property of steam railroads and other public service corporations should be so changed as to compel the assessment of those properties at not less than their salable value as going concerns and to prevent their evasion of just taxation.

CLASSIFICATION.

3. That to prevent evasion of state taxes by discriminating valuations, a separation of the sources of state and local revenues should be made. And to that end, we heartily endorse the constitutional amendment now pending before the people and to be voted on next year, which will permit classifications of taxable property.

4. That all public service corporations should be required by law to make sworn public reports and that the power of visitation and examination over such corporations should be given to the proper auditing officers to the end that the true value of the privileges had by such corporations may be made plain to the people.

FREE PASSES.

5. That the acceptance of free passes or other favors from railroads by public officers or employees should be adequate ground for their removal from office.

6. That the denial of the right of free speech and peaceable persuasion in times of labor disturbances is a denial of the right of free speech, and that government by injunction if persisted in, will wreck the liberties of the people.

MUNICIPAL CODE.

7. That we demand the enactment of a code which provides absolute home rule for municipalities which shall include the right to establish the merit system with civil service under which that system, as now in use in fire and police departments may be strengthened and perfected and be extended to other municipal departments particularly to water and lighting plants now operated by municipalities and to street car and all public service plants that may hereafter be established under municipal ownership and operation.

HANNA, COX AND FORAKER.

8. That we condemn the vicious and corrupt bargain between the boss of Cincinnati and Ohio's United States Senators to force through the legislature a code that will foist upon the municipalities of Ohio Cincinnati's form of government in order that the power of its boss may be preserved on one hand and on the other hand will perpetuate existing street railway franchises which Ohio's United States Senators represent.

9. That the municipal code should protect the public against all clauses therein which may be clandestinely placed therein in the special interest of public service monopolies by requiring that all ordinances granting, renewing, extending or modifying franchises shall be inoperative until confirmed by a majority vote of the people of the municipality, and we are unalterably opposed to the granting of any perpetual franchises.

SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS.

10. That until United States senators are required by amendment to the federal constitution to be elected by popular vote nominations of candidates for United States senator should be made by state conventions. And we hereby direct that in the official call for the next Democratic state convention of Ohio there be embodied a clause providing for the nomination at that convention of Democratic candidates for United States senator and a clause providing for action by said convention, upon all amendments to the state constitution then pending before the people.

Upon these principles of home rule, and just taxation, and to the accomplishment of these purposes in municipal and state affairs, we invite the co-operation of all citizens of Ohio, regardless of their party affiliations on national questions, hereby solemnly pledging our candidates to the faithful observance of this declaration both in letter and spirit.

DAINTY TRIFLES.

A baby brush is a dainty little silver backed arrangement, accompanied by an ivory fine comb mounted upon a silver stock.

A fine gold chain purse like the old fashioned knitted long purse has its two slip rings jeweled beautifully and is a charming thing.

Handsome college bag spoons are of silver gilt with a pale ground of shaded blue and with white on the handle, on which appear the various flags in appropriate coloring.

Slender malacca canes have crooks tipped with plain silver and gilt, and light sticks of silver gray wood, with the natural bark retained, are ornamented with a narrow triple twist of silver.—Jewelry's Circular Weekly.

OVER THE OCEAN.

"Members of Parliament Must Pay Cash" states a notice displayed in a hairdresser's saloon at Sydney, N. S. W.

Swiss ornithologists declare that cats have become so numerous in Switzerland as to threaten the extermination of all the birds of the country.

Swiss postal officials are to be employed to assist in the reorganization of the Japanese postoffice. The Swiss postal system is to be taken as a model.

Maple Dell is still in the land with bulk and brick ice cream. Old 'phone "Brown" 1521, New 'phone 490.

9-11-2361

R. R. Time Cards.

C., B. & N. T Co Time Table

Westbound—Cars leave Newark 6 a. m.; every hour; last car 10 p. m. Eastbound—Cars leave Columbus 6 a. m.; every hour; last car 10 p. m. Connections for Buckeye Lake with every car from Newark and Columbus.

HARRY PIGG, Ticket Agent.

J. R. HARRIGAN, Gen. Supt.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Trains. HASTE BOUND. Arrive. Depart.

106 Wheel. & Pitta. Ex.	12 25 am	12 35 am
46 Wheel. & Pitta. Ex.	7 15 am	7 25 am
102 Zanesville Accom.	8 07 am	8 19 am
101 Balt. & Wash. Ex.	12 10 pm	12 20 pm
112 Col. & Zanes. Ac.	7 15 pm	7 20 pm
108 From Columbus.	8 05 pm
109 New York Fast Ex.	8 10 pm	8 20 pm
10 Zanes. Ac. (Sunday).	7 00 pm	7 07 pm
(Columbus & Newark Div.)—WEST BOUND.
105 Clin. & St. L. Ex.	2 40 am	2 50 am
111 Zanes. & Col. Ac.	7 10 am	7 20 am
107 Columbus Accom.	8 45 am	8 55 am
109 Clin. & St. L. Ex.	1 45 pm	1 55 pm
115 Col. Ex. (Sunday).	1 10 pm	1 15 pm

NORTH BOUND.

17 Sandusky Accom.	8 07 am	8 10 am
7 Chicago Fast Line.	8 45 am	8 55 am
8 Chicago Mail & Ex.	1 30 pm	1 35 pm
47 Chicago Express.	7 15 pm	7 25 pm

ARRIVING FROM THE NORTH.

46 Chicago Fast Line.	7 15 am
4 Chicago Mail.	12 15 pm
16 Sandusky Accom.	7 35 pm
8 Chicago Express.	8 10 pm

STRAITSVILLE DIVISION.

DEPART.

203 South.	8 15 am
210 South.	2 00 pm

ARRIVE.

207 From South.	1 00 pm
209 From South.	6 55 pm

*Denotes daily.

F. C. BARTHOLOMEW.

Ticket Agent, Newark, O.

B. N. AUSTIN, G. P. A., Chicago, Ill.

D. E. MARTIN, M. P. T., Baltimore, Md.

Pennsylvania Line.

In effect Sunday, June 15th, 1902.

FOR THE EAST.

No. 8-D

Strength

Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil (with Hypophosphites) revitalizes and reconstructs the whole body, corrects all tendency to disease. It is cod liver oil freed from grease—freed from everything that nauseates—ready to be immediately turned into blood, flesh, nerve, muscle.

It cures Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Weak Lungs, Bronchitis, Consumption, Catarrhal Conditions, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, Malassimilation, Rheumatism, Skin Diseases, Pimples, Eruptions, Weakened Conditions following Fevers, Impoverished Blood—makes more and better flesh.

Yet it is more food than medicine. Sold by all druggists. Prepared by Katharine Oberholzer, Chemist, St. Louis, Mo.

J. B. Rosebrough, Manager

THE AUDITORIUM

One Solid Week, Commencing

MONDAY, SEPT. 15

THE GIRARD STOCK GO.

20-PEOPLE 20

OPENING BILL MONDAY NIGHT,

The CATTLE KING

That had a run of 100 nights in the Fourteenth street Theatre, New York City.

Specialties between acts: Empire City Quartette; Geo. Mann Musical Artist; Clarence Marks "Basso", in illustrated songs; Gracie Mann, child artist; Wm. Lee, Monologue.

Ladies Free Tickets Monday night, secured at advance sale.

PRICES 10, 20 and 30 Cents

Wednesday, Sept. 17

THE QUINLAN & WALL

Imperial Minstrels

Youngest, Newest and Swellest!

Direct from Saratoga after breaking all summer records.

Professional Impulses.

Father—If I'd spoken like that to my father, sir, he'd have knocked me down!

Filius—That's the worst of being the son of an auctioneer.

"Admitted Free." "Have you any articles of value with you?" asked the customs inspector. "Nothing," answered the returning traveler, "except a wealthy grass widow whom I expect to marry as soon as I land."

"Well," mused the inspector, rubbing his chin thoughtfully, "I guess you can take her through. Seems to me she will come under the classification of baled hay, and that is free."—Baltimore American.

Don't delay a minute. Cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea come suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always on hand.

New Fall Lines in Every Department

Just back from the eastern markets, we are prepared to give you the leaders. Let us show them to you—You will be satisfied.

J. W. HANSBERGER & BRO.

Towns Near Newark.

REMAINS

OF M. S. LIDA HILL MAY BE EXHUMED.

Mother of Dead Woman Hints Now That Death May Not Have Been Due to Acid.

Utica, Ohio, Sept. 15—Sensational developments are expected in the case of Mrs. Lida Hill, who died in Shelby, a few days ago, supposedly a suicide, as has been told in the Advocate. Mrs. Hill had had a serious quarrel the previous evening with her husband, David Hill. At 11 o'clock the day following the quarrel Mrs. Hill was discovered lying on her bed unconscious and a bottle labeled carbolic acid stood upon the dresser. The young woman died in a few hours, without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Hill's mother, Mrs. John Coulter, who formerly resided in Utica, says that other means than carbolic acid are now thought to have caused the death, and that the parents expect the authorities to exhume the remains. She said there were no evidences of burning about her daughter's mouth or throat, nor was there any odor of carbolic acid in the room.

About a year ago, while visiting in Newark, Mrs. Hill shot herself in the breast. The revolver used at the time was given to her by her husband, who explained that she had asked for it to kill snakes with. The wound healed. Since that time Mrs. Hill has on several occasions threatened to commit suicide.

A dispatch from Shelby brings the following additional news of the Hill suicide:

Coroner Bushnell, of Richland county, when asked whether there would be any investigation made as to the death of Mrs. David Hill in Shelby a week ago said there would not. He lives at Mansfield, and after Mrs. Hill had died, supposedly from taking carbolic acid, the local physicians pronounced it a case of suicide, the dead woman having left a note to the effect that she would end her life. The Coroner was never officially notified until after the body had been embalmed and buried. Then the mother, Mrs. John Coulter, appeared before the Coroner and related her suspicions as to another form of death than suicide. The Coroner said that he could do nothing in the matter, as it had not been reported to him in time, and refused to have the body exhumed for examination. He referred the matter to Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Bowers, but that gentleman being out of the city nothing more has been done in the case up to this time. Mrs. Coulter says she will take the matter up with the Prosecutor as soon as she can get an audience with him.

A GINSENG FARM.

Ashcraft Brothers of near Frazeyburg, have started a new agricultural industry for this section and the second of the kind in Ohio, the growing of ginseng through cultivation, and one which on account of the great cost of the work and the length of time required for coming to maturity will not find much compensation. The first thing is to get the ground in shape, which is done by deep plowing and digging where the entire plot must be covered with rich surface soil from the woods, and which fit it for the plants. After they are out the whole is covered with leaves which are to protect the plants during the winter. But this is apparently the least portion of the work. Heavy posts are placed all through the ground which are joined with cross timbers for the purpose of shading the plants from the sun. Ashcraft Bros. now have out 2,000 of the plants and it takes six years to mature the first crop, after which a portion can be gathered every year by keeping up a regular planting of seeds, which takes 18 months to come to leaf. Ashcraft Bros. have been studying up the subject for some years and have personally inspected some of the best farms in the country.—Bresden Transcript.

STEEL MAN'S SUICIDE.

New Philadelphia, O., Sept. 15—Robert Heinz, aged 30 years, an employee of the steel plant, committed suicide taking carbolic acid. He got a fellow workman to go on his turn at the mill and went to bed.

CHEAP GAS

AS RESULT OF THE RATE WAR AT UTICA.

Another Cut Made in Prices Saturday Night Which Makes Fuel Very Cheap.

Utica, Ohio, Sept. 15—The world's record for cheap fuel is certainly achieved by moves made here Saturday night in the natural gas war. The cut rates of the Logan Company, to $7 a year for a heating stove, and cook stoves and furnaces in proportion were met by the Utica home company and the Logan promptly announced another cut of one half, or to $3.50 a year. This is for a No. 7 mixer which will heat an ordinary house.

For a cook stove, which many families use as a heater in the winter, having no other fire in the house, the rate is $6.14 a year, and it may be used with the valve wide open 24 hours a day, and 335 days in the year if desired. For the largest sized furnace in the most pretentious residence the rate is $10.50 a year.

Contracts may be made for five years or any lesser time at the cut rates.

COSHOCTON NOMINATIONS.

Coshocton, Ohio, Sept. 15—Coshocton Republicans have nominated R. A. Powellson for probate judge, Newton Stanton for commissioner, J. R. Johnson for clerk of courts.

STOLEN SHOES RECOVERED.

Detectives Louis Wolfe, Coughlin and Tom Kelly Friday night recovered seven more pairs of shoes which had been stolen while in transit from A. E. Nettleton's factory in Syracuse, N. Y., to Linehan Bros. of Newark, O. These make twenty pair the police have now in their possession. They were stolen from the platform of the Big Four freight house.—Columbus Press.

IDLEWILDE

CLOSES ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

Three Thousand People Passed Into the Park on Closing Day, Sunday September 14.

The season of 1902 at Idlewild Park closed yesterday. Over three thousand persons passed through the gates during the day and evening.

The ball game in the afternoon between the Mt. Vernon and the Texas Outlaws resulted in favor of the Outlaws by a score of 2 to 6. It was a well played game from start to finish. The Mt. Vernon boys put up a nice appearance, but they can't play with the Outlaws whose record stands for the season, thirty-seven games played and one lost. A return game will be played at Mt. Vernon next Friday.

During the afternoon and evening the Fourth regimental band of Columbus entertained the crowd by its concerts which was highly enjoyed by all. In the evening the Casino was packed, twice as many being turned away as gained admission. By special request Fanchelli and Lewis, the lyric stars who were at the Park last season, were retained for Sunday evening's performance. Two Newark boys, the Bloom Brothers, acrobats, made good and received the glad hand. The other vaudeville numbers were Kesley Moore in his marvelous slack-wire act. The Mitchells with their illustrated songs, the moving pictures and Innis and Ryan, skit artists, who made a hit with their funny talk and topical songs.

This season closes the fifth successful one for Idlewild as a park, under the able management of Mr. J. F. Lingafelter, who by much expense, time and labor has developed the natural beauties of the place, making it one of the prettiest and finest summer amusement resorts in the State, and for which his thousands of patrons feel very grateful. As a manager he has gained the reputation of carrying out every contract made to the letter and of conducting a clean place of amusement.

Read Want Ads., page 6.

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated? He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack. What he wants to know is what will permanently cure his disease. That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

WEDDING

Of Miss Elta C. Moore, Daughter of D. M. Moore, Formerly of This City, to H. G. Warden.

(Columbus Dispatch.)

The social season was opened Wednesday evening by the wedding of Miss Elta Carolyn Moore and Mr. Hosea Gifford Warden, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Moore, 564 Franklin avenue.

The house was artistically decorated with white asters and lilies, which with soft candle light made a beautiful background.

At 8:30 to the strains of the wedding march, Master Delano Warden and Master Nelson Black, stretched broad white satin ribbons through the drawing rooms. First came the groom with his best man, Mr. John Moore, brother of the bride; then Master Morton Evans, daintily clad in white, bearing the ring in a calla lily. After him came the maid of honor, Miss Mabelle Josephine Johns, of Cleveland, followed by the bride with her father.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Broad street Presbyterian church before a bank of palms lighted by tall candles. After receiving congratulations from the numerous friends and relatives, a delightful bridal supper was served; at the bridal table decorated with white asters and white candles fourteen of the young friends of the bride and groom were seated.

The bridal gown was particularly dainty and charming, being of white panne liberty over taffeta with horizontal tucking and accordion plained flounces. Around the yoke were points of delicate duchesse lace, and a filmy veil fastened with orange blossoms, completed a most beautiful picture of one of the prettiest of brides. She carried an exquisite shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and was truly a "lily-white bride."

Mrs. Johns' gown was of white crepe de chine over taffeta made with deep box plaits and shirred flounces, and trimmed with chiffon roses and taffeta pipings. She also wore a veil which was of waist length and fastened with feathers, long white embroidered mitts and carried an armful of lilies.

Mrs. Moore, the bride's mother, wore a beautiful gown of black grenadine over black satin, trimmed with black and white chiffon applique.

Mrs. Delano Warden, the mother of the groom, wore black net over black taffeta, elaborately trimmed with jet. Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Samuel P. Johns, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Merriam, and Miss Cora Carlisle, of Cleveland; Mrs. Hugh Harrison, of West Virginia; Mrs. Harry Swisher, Miss Scott, Mrs. Owen and Mr. and Mrs. Warden, of Newark. At a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Warden left for a month's tour of Colorado.

For Over Sixty Years.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over 60 years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Coming Events.

Sept. 30—Licking County Fair opens

The Newark Business College Reopens (14th year) Sept. 8, 1902. General Business, Shorthand and Typewriting. Editor, H. B. Fair and Co., 1000 Broadway. Send for Journal, S. L. Bauer, Principal.

FARM FOR SALE.

I have a farm of 100 acres, 5 miles west of Newark for $10,000, if sold soon. Improvements, not the best, but soil can not be excelled. This is a bargain. 9-9-12d REES R. JONES.

A GOOD SAVER IS A GOOD SERVER

Those who buy my Home oil and gasoline in the machine-filled and labeled square cans which I loan, not only save 2 and 3 cents a gallon but get the best oil and gasoline made. Stop the wagon or send postal card to C. M. Lines, 150 Wilson st. Lost and Found notices, page 6.

RAILWAYS.

THE RAPID TRANSIT TUNNEL IS THREE-FIFTHS FINISHED.

Already Has Cost 21 Millions and 24 Lives—Local Railway Items and Personal Notes.

New York, Sept. 15.—It is announced this morning that the rapid transit tunnel is three-fifths completed. Work has been in progress two years and $21,000,000 has been expended and 24 lives sacrificed in the work, an average of one fatality a month. The engineers expect to start a train Christmas day, 1903.

Local Railway Notes.

B. & O. Engineer Phil Gintner, who has been on the sick list for several months, will be able to resume his run in the yards in a few days.

Fireman John Kennedy is still quite sick with stomach trouble at his home on Barclay street, although there is quite a marked change for the better.

Extra Engineer John Kane, who has been quite sick at his home on South First street for several weeks, is rapidly recovering and will soon be able to resume work.

B. & O. Fireman Charles Tanner is still sick at his home on German street with malarial fever.

After having been off duty for a week on account of sickness, Yard Fireman E. Johnson has returned to work.

Extra Engineer T. R. Howorth is confined to his rooms on East Main street with a severe attack of rheumatism.

Mr. James Dennison, the efficient road foreman of engines of the B. & O. returned Saturday from Chicago where he was in attendance at the convention of Traveling Engineers, held at the Hotel Stratford.

Conductor M. B. Rouse, after a short absence, has been marked up for work. Conductor Wm. Moore of the C. & O. local, who has been off duty for a short time, has been marked up for work.

Brakeman W. S. McConnell of the L. E. division, is off on leave of absence for a few days.

Engineer M. E. Davis who has been off on account of sickness, has recovered and returned to work.

Brakeman W. I. Smith is working again after having been off for a few trips.

Brakeman H. L. Zellers has been given leave of absence for a time and has gone to his home in Johnstown, Pa., where he will make a short visit.

Conductor C. C. Frees has been given leave of absence for a few days. Brakeman W. E. Rinehart of the L. E. division, has resumed work after having been off for a time.

Brakeman H. E. Wilson of the L. E. division, is laying off for a few days for a rest.

Conductor E. E. Moore of the L. E. division, has reported for duty after having been off for several days.

Conductor E. T. Hukill of the C. & N. division who has been off on leave of absence, has been marked up for work.

Brakeman A. T. Haslop, of the C. O. division, has O. K'd for work.

Brakeman J. R. Haines of the C. & N. division is off on leave of absence. D. O. Connors has been given a position as Brakeman on the B. & O. and has been assigned to duty on the L. E. division.

Brakeman A. C. Granby of the L. E. division, after having been off on account of sickness for several months, has recovered and returned to work.

Brakeman R. F. Rector of the L. E. division who has been off duty for a time, has returned to work.

Conductor D. C. Sheffer of the L. E. division, is working again after having been off for a time.

Brakeman H. W. Dixon of the L. E. division, is off on leave of absence.

Brakeman B. F. Coffman of the L. E. division is off for a short rest.

B. & O. Conductor D. M. McGuire of Sandusky is in the city.

The Inspector Brown went to Zanesville today.

B. & O. Conductor Wm. Moore took No. 55 to Wheeling today.

The B. & O. baggage and postoffice car 116 and U. S. express car 649 from the Zanesville shops were thoroughly overhauled.

Pan Handle Fireman Webster Paul, of Dennison, spent Sunday in the city. The Pan Handle employees at Denison will picnic at Idlewild Park on Saturday.

Supt. F. J. Batcheller is on the Midland division today.

Concerning Engineer Dick is on the

H-O

There is no sour, musty taste to H-O.

There are so many ways of serving H-O that will not remind you of oatmeal. These dishes are palatable, not because they are made of oatmeal, but because they are made of H-O. You will not find that good H-O taste in plain, every-day oatmeal.

Have you a Low Instep, then try the Shoe Made Special for Maybold's One Price Shoe House, 3 NORTH THIRD ST.

Will fit the most difficult foot.

O. & L. K. ofay.

Supervisor Trehy went to Mt. Vernon today.

DIGNITY

Of the Medical Profession the Subject of an Article by Dr. Charles P. King.

The Cincinnati Lancet-Clinic, a weekly journal of medicine and surgery, carries in its issue of September 13th a feature article on "The Dignity of the Medical Profession," written by Dr. Charles P. King, A. B., M. D. of this city.

This article which occupies over five columns of the Lancet-Clinic is written in the Doctor's forcible style dealing many solar plexus blows at quackery—and he says that Ohio is today called the paradise for quacks and charlatans. The article is introduced as follows:

"It is in the nature of things that as professions become surcharged with professors there is thrown to the surface an element of dross, fitter to be remanded to the crucible of study than to be of any service to the world.

The law has its pettifoggers, the ministry its vain pretenders, and it would be strange if medicine had not its quacks. The medical profession of the present day is not what it once was. Profound investigation has given rise to the most superficial examination of the subject. Study has become sort of a mechanical memorizing, and the degree of "Doctor of Medicine" has in great measure lost its dignity and importance, being assumed by every one who has administered a dose. Physicians spring up like mushrooms in a night, and the neighborhood is unknown that is deprived of dwelling on those golden words on little bits of tin, that tell the unwary traveler of a doctor within."

FAREWELL SURPRISE.

A number of the friends of Miss Flossie Ludy tendered her a surprise children get round shouldered, and they have several months of work ahead of them. A little help during the growing period will insure square shoulders, while neglect may mean a defect that will never be remedied. We have good ones, for both children and adults, the very latest and most approved designs. They don't cost a great deal, and you can't estimate the good they may do.

Shoulder Braces

R. W. SMITH,

Prescription Druggist, S. E. Corner Park, Opp. P. O. Both 'Phones.

Four large seals have been observed basking the sun on the West Shingles banks at the mouth of the Thames.

Rheumatol

Is a sure cure for rheumatism of all kinds.

Rheumatol

Is guaranteed to CURE and we stand back of the guarantee and mean business.

Rheumatol

Is a liquid preparation to be taken internally and will not disagree with the most fastidious stomach.

Rheumatol

Is endorsed by over one hundred Newark citizens in testimonials written by them.

If you have rheumatism—come talk it over with us—you have everything to gain and absolutely nothing to lose.

ERNEST T. JOHNSON,

DRUGGIST, No. 10 South Second St.

SAMUEL M. HUNTER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

Office over Horner & Edmiston's Book Store, south of City House. Will practice in Licking and adjoining counties. Special attention given to collections, correspondence and the business of executors, administrators and guardians.

DR. A. W. BEARD,

DENTIST.

Office Hours—8 to 11:30, 12:30 to 5. Up-to-date methods in dentistry. Filling, Crowning and Bridge Work and Plates of all kinds. All work guaranteed. Extracting a specialty, and as near painless as possible. Gas and vitalized air used when desired. Office—First stairway north of Carroll's dry goods store, North Third street, 272 Granite street. Old Union Bldg.

School the Shoulders

It is not at play, but at work, that children get round shouldered, and they have several months of work ahead of them. A little help during the growing period will insure square shoulders, while neglect may mean a defect that will never be remedied. We have good ones, for both children and adults, the very latest and most approved designs. They don't cost a great deal, and you can't estimate the good they may do.

Shoulder Braces

R. W. SMITH,

Prescription Druggist, S. E. Corner Park, Opp. P. O. Both 'Phones.

Four large seals have been observed basking the sun on the West Shingles banks at the mouth of the Thames.

CHAMP CLARK STORIES

The Relation of Brains and Physical Beauty.

Presidents of the United States Who Possessed Brawn as Well as Mental—Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln Were Tall and Also Great—Madison, the Shortest, Was Well-Equipped With Gray Matter, Concerning Noses.

[Copyright, 1902, by Champ Clark.] Since the lords of creation have worked out most of the theories which delight or barass mankind, as the case may be, it is not strange that it is commonly accepted that only women plume themselves upon their beauty and that men don't care a continental whether they are themselves handsome or, to steal a word from Nat Dryden's mint, unpretty.

It may be true that as a general thing men do not care for themselves, though I don't believe one word of it, but if so there are exceptions which prove the rule.

A Historical Fact.

It is a historical fact that when Mrs. General William Henry Harrison took possession of the White House and "viewed the landscape o'er" with an idea of renovating it she observed, with amusement, that the only portion of the velvet carpets worn threadbare and trodden into tatters was the part immediately in front of the mirrors in the rooms used by President Van Buren as his private apartments. But, then, "Old Van" was not only "a used up man," as the hard cider, conklin literature hath it, but was a gay and festive widower, which is an explanation that explains. Although he lacked as much of being an Apollo Belvedere as any of the occupants of that greatly coveted mansion, he was under the domination of Cupid, the most inexorable tyrant of all the gods of mythology, and whatever time he could snatch from the serious business of his presidential life—i. e., the setting up of pins, the pulling of wires and the laying of pipes for re-election—he spent admiring his own foxy face and pudgy figure in a looking glass, "allee samee as Melican gallee."

An Idea That Survives.

It cannot be disputed that a woman's personal appearance had much to do with her success in life in the good old days when catching a husband was one of her chief occupations and has something to do with her career now, in the day of the "new woman" and her hideous bloomers.

Whether or not a man's looks, physical strength and size in any way influence his political career is a question which every boy aspiring to public station should study prayerfully and carefully, for if he intends entering upon that perilous life he cannot afford to despise any aids which he can legitimately invoke. If he decides that these things count, he can by proper training increase his size, augment his strength and improve his looks, though he cannot add a cubit to his stature.

I am not expressing any opinion on this subject, but from time immemorial the qualities of people have been more or less estimated by their physical features.

In antiquity rulers were chosen more for their physical than their intellectual prowess.

That idea still survives in our vocabulary if not in our practice, for the word "king," when traced back to its Teutonic origin, means "one who can." It is the same as the German "Koenig." It is thumped into the heads of our schoolboys constantly—to their detriment, as I think—that every boy is a possible president.

It would be infinitely better to impress upon them that they should do their duty honestly, intelligently and courageously in whatever station God may place them, and that the chief end of an American, if not of man, is to be a good, law abiding, patriotic citizen, a true neighbor, a faithful friend, a kind husband and a tender father.

Every boy can be all these, but only about eight boys out of every generation can be president.

Our Big Presidents.

Nevertheless the presidency is the measure of human greatness in this country. There have been 25 presidents. What manner of men were they physically? Of the 25 only four—Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln—were over six feet. Washington and Jefferson being 6 feet 2½ inches, Jackson 6 feet 1 inch, and Lincoln overtopped them all with 6 feet 4 inches.

Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln were not only very tall, but famous for their strength. Every boy remembers the stories of how Washington pulled a new burrhead in two with his hands and how he threw a stone across the Rappahannock at Fredericksburg, a performance never duplicated by any other man, while Lincoln could outwrestle any other soldier in the Black Hawk war.

Hundreds of stories have been told of Jefferson's strength and grace. These four men outrank all other American presidents. To say that they were great because of their unusual stature would be arguing on the cum hoc ergo propter hoc principle, which I never do.

James Madison was the smallest of the presidents physically, but he comes near crowding into the first class mentally. He was about 5 feet 3 inches and weighed little above 100. He enjoys the distinguished honor in history of being known as "the Father of the Constitution."

In fact, he and Alexander Hamilton, another little man physically, are entitled to the lion's share of the praise for the adoption of that greater charter of our liberties. By this one performance, and it was their chef d'œuvre, these two small men did more to influence the destiny of the human race than all the giants who have lived from the days of Og to the present hour.

And Hamilton met his death at the hands of Aaron Burr, the smallest man who was ever vice president.

The second shortest president was Martin Van Buren. What he lacked in length he made up in breadth.

Grover Cleveland enjoys the distinction of being the heaviest of all our chief magistrates. General Garfield was about six feet, weighed about 225 and was a splendid specimen of physical and intellectual manhood.

Many people will easily recall the magnificent ingenuity with which Charles A. Dana stabbed Garfield's illustrious rival, Winfield Scott Hancock, surnamed "The Superb," by saying editorially "General Hancock is a good man, who weighs 250 pounds." This I always believed did more to defeat him than his ill advised jabber about the tariff.

Franklin Pierce and General Arthur were the most Chesterfieldian of the presidents and perhaps the handsomest. They were of fair size.

All the other presidents except those above named would fall under the general head of "medium" in avoirdupois stature and handsomeness.

The historic question propounded by the little boy, "How big was Alexander, pa, that people call him great?" had philosophy as well as curiosity at the bottom of it.

Charles Dickens, a rare judge of human nature, pronounced two opinions on historic personages worth quoting. He said that Andrew Johnson, would be picked out in any crowd as a distinguished man, and that if all the Russian people were dressed exactly alike and a stranger had to select a czar guided only by ocular inspection he would unhesitatingly choose the Emperor Nicholas.

An Assemblage of Kings.

When the Carthaginian ambassador returned home after a visit to Rome and was asked how the Roman senate appeared to him, he made the memorable reply, "It looks like an assemblage of kings." But that was in Rome's best days.

As much cannot be said for the American senate, though its members are a fairly good looking set of men, most of them far past their prime and many qualified to occupy seats in the bald-headed row at a ballet performance.

At present Hon. Joseph Weldon Bailey of Texas and Jonathan Prentice Dolliver of Iowa are perhaps the handsomest men among the conscript fathers. They are in the very flower of their years and are physical athletes as well as intellectual.

The largest men who ever sat in the senate were Dixon H. Lewis of Alabama and David Davis of Illinois. They had to have chairs made specially for them.

Sleicher of Texas was the largest man that ever served in the house, and weighed over 400.

Stephen A. Douglas, perhaps the greatest debater this country ever knew, was short and stocky. His friends delighted to call him "the Little Giant," and in very truth he was.

As a sort of ill natured offset to the enthusiasm which that title aroused among the people, Thomas H. Benton, when asked if Douglas could be elected president, replied, "No, sir, his coat-tails reach too near to the curbstone."

One of the most remarkable men, all things considered, who ever figured in politics was Alexander H. Stephens. He never weighed a hundred and was sick all his days. In his last years in congress he was conveyed in a wheel chair daily into the house of representatives by a faithful colored servant.

But he was a host within himself. Once some big Georgian was having a tilt with him and got mad and said, "I have half a mind to swallow you alive," whereupon Stephens replied in his shrill tenor, "If you do, you'll have more brains in your belly than you ever had in your head."

Little Nubbin in a Big Shuck.

After the famous Hampton Roads conference President Lincoln said to Secretary Seward, "Seward, did you see Alexander Stephens?" "Yes," "See him with his overcoat on?" "Yes," "See him with it off?" "Yes," "Did you ever see so small a nubbin in so large a shuck?"

Among soldiers, too, little men have held their own. While Maximian, one of the Roman emperors, who fought his way from the position of a private mercenary soldier to the throne, was of gigantic stature, being over eight feet high and so large that he wore his wife's bracelet for a finger ring, ate 40 pounds of meat a day and drank an amphora of wine, Napoleon was only 5 feet 3 inches and in his younger days extremely thin visaged.

The physical feature most indicative of military capacity, so it is said, is the nose. Napoleon judged his officers in that way.

Fowler and Wells state positively in their journal that history furnishes no example of a great general who did not have an aquiline nose.

They state the further amazing fact that if a boy with a perfectly straight nose is put to studying military books his proboscis will gradually take on the Roman style.

But the most astounding proposition which they ever laid down in their articles on nosology was that if Horace Greeley had had a Roman nose he would have defeated General Grant for the presidency.

If presidents are to be elected by noses, certain palpitating patriots who are panting for the White House, even as the hart panteth for the water brook, would do well to consult a nose surgeon.

CHAMP CLARK.

FINE HOUSE

T. E. BRENNAN IS BUILDING IN MILWAUKEE.

Charles G. Rank Another Former Newark Man, Coming to the Front at St. Paul.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin of Saturday last contained a two-column cut showing a fine new home that Mr. T. E. Brennan, formerly of his city, is now building in that western city. Mr. Brennan is at the head of the Western Fire Adjusters for the insured at 89 Wisconsin street, Milwaukee, and is one of the Newark men in the west who is making his mark. The Evening Wisconsin says: Architects Leehouts & Guthrie, who have this year made plans for a large number of fine private residences and several large flats, have in charge the superintendency and plans of the handsome residence now being built at the northwest corner of Folson place and Stowell place by T. E. Brennan, president of the Wisconsin Fire Adjusters for the Insured. The house is thirty by fifty feet, with a large porch of the colonial style along the south side. On the first floor, which will be finished entirely in hard woods, will be a reception room with a broad staircase leading from it, with a landing, where Mr. Brennan can figure out fire losses undisturbed. There will also be a large reception room with an artistic open fire place and seat; a drawing room thirteen by nineteen, finished in curled birch; a dining room twelve and a half by sixteen, with a large bay window, and the kitchen, with all modern arrangements. On the second floor will be four good-sized, well-lighted rooms and the attic will have a servant's room and large hall or store room. The house will be finished by November 1, and will cost $8,000. It will be heated with a hot water system.

MR. CHARLES G. RANK.

Another Newark man who is coming to the front in the western business world is Mr. Charles G. Rank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Rank of this city. Mr. Rank is now a member of the firm Howell & Rank, dealers in railway supplies at St. Paul, Minn., and a Newark man who was recently through Mr. Rank's place of business reports that the firm is doing an immense business and is making plenty of money.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I commenced using your Cream Balm about two years ago for catarrh. My voice was somewhat thick and my hearing was dull. My hearing has been fully restored and my speech has become quite clear. I am a teacher in our town. L. G. BROWN, Granger, O. No comment is needed. Trial size 10 cents. Full size 50c. Ask your druggist. We mail it.

ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., New York.

Bad blood and indigestion are deadly enemies to good health. Burdock Blood Bitters destroys them. mwt

The Philadelphia Mint.

Before a burglar could tunnel into the money vaults of the Philadelphia mint he would have to pierce a solid rock so full of veins of water that the smallest opening is immediately flooded. The gold vaults are of steel seven inches thick, and the silver is protected by one inch of steel.

Cork.

All the cork used in the world in a year weighs just over 1,000 tons. It comes from France, Spain, Portugal, Italy and north Africa.

Thick Headed Whales.

The head of the whale has been known to attain a thickness of over two feet.

Assorted Dozens.

In the china trade there are twelve quart pitchers to the dozen, but twenty-four pint pitchers. There are sometimes as many as seventy plates to the dozen.

Banks in Pittsburg.

Ranking in Pittsburg dates back to the year 1894.

All who use Atomizers in treating nasal catarrh will get the best result from Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price, including spraying tube, 75cts. Sold by druggists or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

New Orleans, Sept. 1, 1902.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I sold two bottles of your Liquid Cream Balm to a customer, William Lamberton, 1415 Delachaise Street, New Orleans; he has used the two bottles, giving him wonderful and most satisfactory results. GEO. W. McDUFF, Pharmacist.

A DOCTOR'S STORY

[Original] On my list of trained nurses was Mercedes Marcel, a young woman of the Spanish type. Miss Marcel had ravishing black eyes, a wealth of hair of the same hue and a supple figure. She had great influence over the patients she nursed, often lifting them over their low points solely by her magnetic influence. For this reason I recommended her whenever she was discharged.

I sent for her to attend a Mrs. Brierly, and as usual she gave great satisfaction. The patient, however, did not seem to gain after having reached a certain point. Indeed she seemed to retrograde. Several times it occurred to me to ask, as is my custom with my patients, how she liked her nurse, but as Miss Marcel was always in the room with her when I called and as I had heard the nurse's praises so often sounded by others it did not occur to me to send her out in order to make the inquiry.

One day while visiting Mrs. Brierly I noticed that she was following the nurse about the room with her eyes, and when Miss Marcel's back was turned she quickly drew me down and with her lips close to my ear whispered:

"If you don't take that woman away, I shall die."

"Miss Marcel," I said, "go and get me some hot water."

The nurse stepped to the electric button and was about to push it when I said, "Go yourself."

"I have signals for some of the ordinary wants of a sickroom," she said. "I press the button twice, and I get hot water quicker than I can go for it."

"Very nice. You needn't press the button. I wish to be left alone with my patient. Go out and don't return until I call for you."

She obeyed me. I turned my back to her as she went out and saw her face in a mirror. She gave the sick woman one of the most peculiar glances I ever saw, such a glance as a hypnotist would give one he was endeavoring to master.

"Now," I said to my patient when the door was closed, "why did you not tell me this before?"

"Because she always remained in the room when you were here, and I have no charge to make against her."

"What, then, is the trouble?"

"There is something in her that is wearing the life out of me. Don't ask me what it is, for I don't understand it myself."

"Never mind. Don't talk about it. She shall not enter your room again."

"But?"

"But what?"

"She will ruin me."

"Ruin you? How? You are nothing to her, and I will see that she doesn't get at you."

I did what I could to make the poor woman feel easy and left her. Her husband was coming in as I was going out. I told him that I was about to change his wife's nurse.

"You surprise me. I have never met a more agreeable woman," he said.

"You mean seductive?" a faint suspicion coming over me at his warmth.

He turned pale.

"Brierly," I said, "I shall at once commence inquiries as to Miss Marcel's antecedents. If you are especially predisposed toward her, suspend judgment till I make my report."

Within an hour I had hired a detective to learn all that he could about Miss Marcel. It was six weeks before he made his report. When I received it, Mrs. Brierly had become convalescent and was no longer under my care, so I went to her husband's office.

"Mr. Brierly," said his confidential clerk, "is out of the city."

"His address?"

"I will forward any communication."

"His address?" I said sharply. "There is something wrong. Tell me at once or I will report to the police that he has absconded."

The man made excuses and all that, but seeing that I was not to be trifled with, told me that I could find Brierly at a certain hotel. I went there and sent up my card. Brierly came down with a seared look on his face. Without commenting on how or where I had found him I drew the detective's report on Miss Marcel.

Father, Jacques Marcel, banker, Paris; embezzled funds and served ten years in the galley. Mother, previous to her husband's arrest, had eloped with a Spanish gentleman, taking with her the little girl Mercedes; afterward came to America. The child was brought up in the circus ring; subsequently worked in a hospital and became a trained nurse; nothing definite as to her character.

I watched Brierly closely as he read the report and saw him shudder. Then as his reserve broke away, and he gave me his confidence.

"Doctor," he said, "how can I ever repay you? You saved my wife from this woman, and now you have saved me. I came here preparatory to eloping with her—that is, she brought me here. I have been under her strange influence since the day you sent her to my house to nurse my dear wife. The spell is broken, and I shall do all in my power to avoid meeting this witch that she may never control me again."

"You owe me nothing," I said. "I have been at fault in placing the life of a patient in jeopardy by not investigating the antecedents and character of a nurse. Hereafter I shall be more careful."

Brierly went home, and his wife never knew of his intended flight. Mrs. Brierly was the last invalid Miss Marcel ever nursed. I reported the case at the training school at which the nurse had been educated and found that she had been admitted through the influence of one of the managers.

WALTER V. TUCKER.

Today is the Day

TO-DAY PREPARE YOURSELF FOR THE HOT AND ENERVATING DAYS OF SUMMER. GET YOUR STOMACH IN GOOD WORKING ORDER TO DIGEST YOUR FOOD PROPERLY, AND THEREBY HAVE NEW BLOOD TO CIRCULATE THROUGH EVERY VEIN IN YOUR BODY.

THIS WILL GIVE YOU NEW STRENGTH AND INVIGORATE YOUR WHOLE SYSTEM. IF YOU ARE SUFFERING FROM

Lost Vitality, Nervous Prostration, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Insomnia, Flatulency, Stomach or Bowel Trouble, it is your duty to Correct these evils at once! START TODAY!

AND TRY ONLY ONE BOTTLE OF

Walther's Peptonized Port

AND YOU WILL FEEL THE WONDERFUL INVIGORATING QUALITIES OF THIS WORLD FAMOUS COMMON SENSE COMBINATION. YOUR DOCTOR WILL SURELY ENDORSE AND RECOMMEND YOU TO TAKE

WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT

FOR HE KNOWS PURE PORT WINE IS A STRENGTH GIVER AND TISSUE BUILDER, AND PURE PEPSIN IS THE COMMON SENSE WORD FOR YOUR STOMACH'S SAKE.

LEADING DRUGGISTS OF GOOD STANDING RECOMMEND AND SELL WALTHER'S PEPTONIZED PORT. PINTS, 50c; QUARTS, $1.00; SAMPLE SIZE, 10c.

FREE SAMPLES AT HALL'S DRUG STORE.

AMUSEMENTS.

Everybody who saw the Cattle King on the occasion of its presentation in the larger cities will be delighted to know that the Girard stock company will produce it tonight at the Auditorium. It is easily the most popular if not the best from a literary standpoint of any of the plays turned out by this famous author, Lew Parker.

He has written nothing so good as the Cattle King. There are a good many qualities that go to make a really successful play. Construction is one of them. A magnificent production is promised. High class specialties will be introduced between the acts by the Empire City Quartette, George Mann, musical artist, Clarence Marks, the wonderful basso in illustrated songs, Gracie Mann, child artist, Wm. Lev, comedian, and Beatrice Bank, soubrette. Prices 10, 20 and 30 cents. Secure seats in advance.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

Dan Quinan, one of the owners of the Quinlan & Wall Imperial Minstrels and sole manager of that splendid amusement enterprise, which is dated for Wednesday night, at the Auditorium, began his show life on the stage as property boy. He has steadily and successfully risen from the very bottom to his present proud pinnacled position. He knows the minstrel business from start to finish. His wide experience has taught him what the American people most like, and he, enthusiastically backed up by his partner, Jimmy Wall, has provided a wholesale menu of wonders and melodies for patrons. In a word, Dan Quinan has genius, knows not defeat, is an originator, a born leader and showman, and not a follower. He has triumphantly, decisively and honestly earned the laurel, "The Chesterfield of Modern Minstrelsy."

AUDITORIUM SEPT. 22.

The history of the stage for past season would make a barren and uninspiring narrative, for failure followed failure with a rapidity that was as unfortunate for managers as it was alarming to devotees of dramatic art. Production followed production, and nearly all followed the same depressing fate. In this dearth of things dramatic and among the very few plays destined to hold the stage to the present time, is Denman Thompson and

George W. Ryer's "Our New Minister."

It will be seen here for the first time at the Auditorium for the first time September 22, and lovers of comedy have a rare treat in store for them.

After seeing it one must admit that "Our New Minister" is a wholly delightful play and a most wholesome

Huge Potatoes.

Mr. H. R. Blizzard, who resides just north of Cedar Hill cemetery, on Manning street, has just finished digging his potatoes, of which he has several varieties, and harvested an immense crop. Saturday Mrs. Daniel Davis, a daughter of Mr. Blizzard, brought to the Advocate office a sample of Michigan Rose potatoes raised by Mr. Blizzard, which were perfect beauties. They were the largest and most perfectly formed potatoes seen this season. The sample consisted of four potatoes, which weighed respectively 1 1/2 pounds, 1 pound, 9 ounces; 1 pound 11 ounces, and 1 pound 12 ounces.

Short Notes

$10 to $100

Borrowers complying with my terms will not waste their money in bonuses or fees. Chas. M. Hoover, 126 1-2 W. Main, room 7, Avoca, New York 660.

PERRYTON. Fred Holman is visiting relatives in Utica.

Van Burk has returned from his tour in Columbus.

W. C. Seward, wife and son spent Saturday at Perryton.

Prof. Marshall of Muskingum College, who has been at the home of G. H. Brown for a few weeks, has returned home.

Rev. H. H. Miller has packed his goods, and has gone to Delaware, where he will finish his college course next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Chester, spent Sunday with Rev. Mr. Miller.

Miss Nellie Cullison opened her school at Meadow View on Monday.

Mr. Willis and Mrs. Darke are visiting friends in Zanesville.

Miss Vernie Marble, one of Perryton's best young teachers, will teach at Pleasant Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips and son visited Eden friends on Sunday.

Prof. and Mrs. Nichols are spending the week with friends in Pataskala.

Prof. Rogers and family have returned home.

Nearly 8,000 motor cars are now in use in Paris and the neighborhood.

2,500 of the cars having a registered speed of over 15 miles an hour. The number of licensed chauffeurs at the beginning of the month was 13,600.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

2462.

FACTS NOT FICTION.

A Plain Statement of a Bad Condition and a Cure That Never Fails.

Mrs. L. Devine of No. 152 Locust st Newark, Ohio, says: "I was greatly troubled with nervousness, could not sleep well and was generally run down. I was advised to take Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and got a box at Bricker's City Drug Store and found them an excellent medicine and I can recommend them to others as safe and sure."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are sold at 50 cents a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every package.

2462.

What Do You Think of It?

Boys' School Shoes warranted water proof or a NEW PAIR FREE.
School Shoes warranted all solid leather or a NEW PAIR FREE.
For any pair of shoes bought of us with cut off vamps, paper counters or insoles we will give a NEW PAIR FREE.

Patent Leather Shoes for Ladies and Gentlemen, guaranteed not to break through before the sole wears through or a NEW PAIR FREE. (Trading Stamp.)

GARL & SEYMOUR
SOUTH SIDE SHOE HUSTLERS.

Notice of Bond Sale.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Finance Committee of the Council of the City of Newark, Ohio, at the office of the City Clerk until Wednesday, the 15th day of October, 1902.

at 12 o'clock M. for the purchase of six bonds of the City of Newark, Ohio, bearing date the 1st day of September, 1902, numbered consecutively from one to six, and due and payable as follows:

No. 1 due September 1, 1903.
No. 2 due September 1, 1904.
No. 3 due September 1, 1905.
No. 4 due September 1, 1906.
No. 5 due September 1, 1907.
No. 6 due September 1, 1909.

Each being for the sum of One Thousand Dollars, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. Said bonds are issued for the purpose of building a fire department building on North Fourth street in said city, in pursuance of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, entitled an act to amend sections 2825, 2836 and 2837 and to repeal section 2837a of the Revised Statutes of Ohio, authorizing the issue of bonds in cities, villages, hamlets and townships, passed April 29, 1902, and of an ordinance, entitled an ordinance for the issue of bonds to raise money to pay for the construction of a Fire Department Building, Corner Fourth and Ash streets, passed the 19th day of August, 1902, authorizing their issue.

Said Bonds will be sold to the highest bidder for not less than their par value.

Bidders are required to state the number of bonds bid for, and the gross amount they will pay for the bonds, and for what accrued interest to date of transfer.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

Proposals must be sealed and endorsed "Bids for Fire Department Bonds," and addressed to The Finance Committee, City Council of City of Newark, Ohio. Clerk's office of said city.

F. T. MAURATH, City Clerk.

THE SICK

George Sprague, who has been confined to his home for some days with sickness, was able to be out today for the first time.

Mrs. Wm. Rugg, who has been sick at her home, 276 South Second street, for some days, with neuralgia of the stomach and bowels, is reported as being considerably better.

John Zipperer, Jr., is suffering with an attack of malaria at his home on Jefferson street.

Miss Verona Stare, who has been confined to her home at 26 North Fifth street, for some days, with an attack of malaria, is much improved.

Mrs. McMillan of Front street, is quite sick with remittent fever.

James Husband is ill at his home on Wilson street.

Wm. Long, the retired mail man is able to be out again after being laid up more than three weeks with a sprained ankle.

Charles Harrington who was injured at the park Labor Day, is out again.

Elmer Baker is sick at his home on Tenth street.

Peter Stare, the North End gardener is quite ill.

Cheong—Chuk Kwan, a Chinese woman of wealth and education, is going on a tour of the world, and will be the first Chinese woman who has ever attempted such a venture. She has progressive ideas and is going to see what America and Europe are like.

The movement to erect a monument to General F. E. Spinner is making progress under the care of Miss L. R. Whelpley, of East Capital street, Washington. General Spinner was the first to admit women to the Treasury Department on equal terms with men.

An order for 15,000 eight-horse plows for breaking up the virgin soil in South Africa has been received by the Farquhar agricultural works at York, Pa.

A little life may be sacrificed to a sudden attack of crop if you don't have Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil on hand for the emergency.

DEATH

OF MRS. LUTHER J. JOHNSON ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

End Came, After Several Months' Illness, at Mrs. Johnson's Late Home on North Fifth.

Mrs. Eliza P. Johnson, wife of Captain Luther J. Johnson, died at her home 111 North Fifth street Sunday afternoon after an illness of over four months, with a general breaking down of the nervous system.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were on a trip to California last spring, and on May 4th Mrs. Johnson was taken ill, and her recovery was despaired of. She became better however and was brought home July 22. For a time it was thought she would get well, but a collapse came, and she became gradually weaker until the time of her death.

Mrs. Johnson's maiden name was Eliza Johnson, and she was born of Quaker parents in Baltimore county, Maryland, September 6, 1828, being 74 years and 8 days old at the time of her death. She lived in Maryland until 1849, when she was married to Captain Luther Johnson, and in 1858 they removed to Newark, where they have since resided, prominent and honored members of the community for a period of 43 years.

There were ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, eight of whom are living. They are Mrs. W. A. Sprague, Mrs. C. C. Rankin, Mr. Ernest T. Johnson of Newark, Oregon Johnson of Springfield, Mrs. Milton Knoble of Richmond, Ind., Mrs. David Evans and Harry Johnson of Chicago, and Mrs. Celia Sturgess of Mt. Vernon, O.

The funeral will take place from the home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. G. W. Van Fossen of Trinity Episcopal church conducting the services, to which the friends of the family are invited. The interment at Cedar Hill will be private.

The deceased was a member of the Second Presbyterian church, and she was identified with the Woman's Mission Circle and was in hearty sympathy with all other departments of the church's activity. Her life was one of Christian courage and experience, devoted unselfishly to the interests of her family and home circle, where her wise counsel, and loving ministrations were given and received in helpful spirit by the children, who inspired by her example and influence have grown to useful and honored manhood and womanhood.

Her life has closed full of years and honor, but the memory of this true mother, and considerate, kindly personality will remain with those who knew her as an inspiration to emulate her thoroughly well-rounded character.

WEDDING

Of John E. Davis and Miss Julia Nuxall on Williams Street Sunday Evening.

John E. Davis and Miss Julia Nuxall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Nuxall, of Columbia City, Indiana, were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Wells, 85 Williams street, Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, by Rev. J. C. Schindler.

The house was beautifully decorated and after the ceremony and congratulations had been offered, a wedding dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will at once go to housekeeping in their new home, 126 Chestnut street.

DOUBLE TREE—Prof. Ray Osborne together with another gentleman interested in the Ohio State University, on Monday photographed the double maple tree, five miles southwest of the city, on the Ridgely road. They said that an effort would be made to take the tree to the State University, and have it preserved in the museum. This tree has been described in the Advocate.

A DIVORCE SUIT.

In Probate court Mrs. Emma E. Jones has entered a suit for divorce from Benjamin R. Jones on the ground of gross neglect of duty for more than three years. The petition will be heard six weeks from tomorrow.

George Baker, formerly with the Pan Handle company at Columbus, has accepted a position with the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark traction company.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Items Picked Up Here and There Telling of Your Acquaintances Coming and Going.

Wm. Gorman went to Utica today.

Lynn Wilson is in Wheeling today.

George V. Smith of Akron, was in the today on business.

Harry Jenkins and Sylvester Binder, glass blowers, went to Coshocton Saturday night to work at their trade.

Charles Pinkerton went to Columbus today.

Louis Frankel went to Cincinnati today.

Samuel Gilbreath of Perryton spent Sunday in Newark.

N. F. Roeser is in Columbus today on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Fulton are spending the day in Zanesville.

W. J. Fitzgibbon left for Pittsburgh on Sunday night.

E. S. Franklin was in Dayton on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nichols spent Sunday in Cincinnati.

John Eshelman spent Sunday with friends in Black Hand.

John R. DeBols spent Sunday in Portsmouth.

Robert Smith of the E. H. Everett glass works, spent Sunday with friends in Zanesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scheffer who were recently married, have gone to housekeeping on Florence street.

Mrs. and Mrs. P. J. Fairall spent Sunday with Mr. Fairall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fairall, at Reform.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Giffin spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Giffin at Granville.

Daniel Evans, John E. Parker, E. S. Rolfe, and Joseph Smith spent Sunday in Sandusky.

Miss Maggie Schmidt of Columbus, visited her mother on Second street on Sunday.

Mrs. M. Q. Baker of Coshocton attended the funeral of Miss Franklin today.

George Miller of Columbus, spent Saturday in the city the guest of Joseph Zahn.

Mrs. John Miller of Columbus, was the guest of Mrs. Joseph Zahn on Saturday.

Misses Anna and Marie Miller of Columbus, spent Saturday in the city, the guests of Misses Ida and Katie Zahn.

Mrs. S. E. Pfiffer leaves today to visit her sister who is quite sick at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dr. M. H. Koehler, assistant medical examiner for the B. & O. railroad, was in the city today.

Mrs. Edward Hinger, who has been visiting relatives on Valandigham street for several weeks, has returned to her home in Mt. Vernon.

J. J. Hill, general collector for the McCormick Agricultural Machine company, was in the city today, and left on a collecting tour.

Joseph N. Pugh is here from Richmond, Va., for a weeks visit at his old home. Mr. Pugh is well and prospering.

Mrs. Frank Haag of Terre Haute, Ind., arrived in Newark on Saturday, and is visiting her parents on Granville street.

Mrs. Thomas W. Davis, Jr., returned to Nashville this morning, after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cordray, of West Main street.

Prof. C. L. Williams of Denison university, Granville, returned this morning from Cincinnati, where he occupied the pulpit of Mt. Auburn Baptist church on Sunday, both morning and evening.

W. P. Ferguson of the firm of Ferguson & Son, who are engaged in constructing several large shops for the Baltimore & Ohio at Fairmount, W. Va., spent Sunday with his family here.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwill of Detroit, who have been visiting her sister, Miss Belle Wilson at her home on Elm street, returned home this morning. They were accompanied by Miss Wilson who will visit with them for several weeks.

Mr. George Johnson of New York City, is the guest of his cousins, Mrs. T. B. Fulton and family at their home south of town. Mr. Johnson is connected with the Portchester Electric road, being built from New York to Boston.

Miss Helen Loving of Oak Ridge, Va., who has been spending the summer with Miss Ruby Franklin, at her home on North Fourth street, returned home on Sunday. Thos. Foos, Carl Dayton and Miss Ruby Franklin accompanied her as far as Columbus.

W. W. O'Bannon, who has been spending the summer with his daughter at Berlingham, Kas., has returned home.

R. J. Roberts spent Sunday in Piqua.

Mrs. Rosetta McNinch who has been visiting Mrs. Ray Anderson and Mrs. D. T. Cole has returned to Columbus.

Dr. A. V. Davis' mother and stepfather, Rev. and Mrs. Hartzell, of Washington, Pa., who expected to spend a few days here, were called home Sunday by the death of Mr. Hartzell's sister.

Mrs. S. C. Morse was called away Sunday by the serious illness of her father, J. D. McDonald, of London, O. Miss Loretta Siegfried has returned home after visiting Miss Aggie Lewis, of Croton.

Zach Milligan left for Mansfield this morning.

D. E. Burge is in Zanesville.

Thomas F. Lennox of Cleveland, formerly clerk of the court, arrived in the city Sunday to visit friends.

Leroy Beene went to Martinsburg today.

M. C. Burge left for Fostoria this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Montgomery of Coshocton, attended the funeral of the late Miss Anna Franklin.

Henry Loewendick, Jr., went to Columbus today to attend school.

J. H. Rodgers of Hanover, was in the city Monday.

M. Schonberg left for Portsmouth today.

A. J. Moore left for Sheridan, Pa., today to accept a position with the Penn Steel company.

Lon Young, a well known gas expert, line man of Indianapolis, is visiting in the city.

Thomas L. Steinmetz of Johnstown, spent Sunday with friends here.

THE W. C. T. U.

Appointment of Department Superintendents—County Convention Held This Week.

At the close of the devotional hour the W. C. T. U. meeting was called to order. Good reports were given of the different departments of work after which followed the appointments of superintendents for the year as follows:

Literature, Mrs. Watson; evangelistic, Mrs. Keller; purity, Mrs. King; rescue work, Mrs. Gridley; mothers' meetings, Mrs. B. F. Patt; jail and prison work, Mrs. Sarah Brown; press work, Mrs. D. T. Cole; scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. C. C. Metz; hospital, Mrs. D. Keim; fair work, Mrs. Horton; entertainment, Mrs. Haber; flower mission, Mrs. Hillier.

The county convention will be held at Alexandria next Friday, September 19th.

Tuesday responsive reading will be led by Mrs. Hare on scientific temperance instruction.

ALTERCATION

BETWEEN A PASSENGER AND A CONDUCTOR.

Latter Put the Man Off the Car Then Took Him to a Doctor for Repairs.

Saturday night when the 8 o'clock car for Granville, with Conductor J. E. Adams in charge, pulled out, two soldiers and a civilian boarded the car at Emerson's corner, as the conductor supposed, to go to the camp grounds. The special reason why the conductor supposed that they were all bound for the camp ground was the fact that one of the soldiers paid the fares for all three of the men. When they arrived at the camp grounds the soldiers got off and the man dressed in citizen's clothes said that he wanted to get off at Buehler's corner. An altercation arose between the passenger, whose name was Cox, and the conductor, the latter insisting that Cox had not told him to put him off at Buehler's, and Cox insisting that that was where he wanted to get off. Cox finally called the conductor names. The conductor then ordered him off the car, and on his refusal to do obey, attempted to put him off. In the struggle the man fell, cutting his head. He then got up, and roundly abused the conductor who showed much patience throughout the affair, and who brought him back to the city and turned him over to Doctor Smith, who attended to his injuries.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Postoffice Barber Shop now open.

For shoes try Maybold one. 8-1501

Goodhair soap cures Prickly Heat. Sprague, Optician, 16, W. Church st. Smith & Nixon Pianos at Rawlings.

Read Advocate want ads on page 6 today.

The gentleman who lost a purse containing a large sum of money at the Elks' Carnival can get information by calling at the Advocate office.

9-1503t

READY TO OCCUPY.

I have just completed a six room house with all modern improvements hot and cold water, bath, etc. This house is in the north end on the street railway. It will be ready to move into Oct. 1st. Call on me any day this week at one or seven p. m. at the Weiland Bakery and see the easy terms of payment.

W. S. WEILANT.

NOTICE—I will not be responsible for bills contracted by Mrs. H. E. Wilson after this date. H. E. Wilson. 11

CLERKS—Retail Clerks will meet this evening at the Court House at 7.30 o'clock.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Close of 108 Eleventh street on September 13, a nine pound baby boy.

HORSE DIED—A valuable horse belonging to Harvey Conger and Geo. Howell died on Sunday with colic.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Smith of 299 Shuler street, a nine pound baby boy.

RECOVERING—Miss Lila Darnes, who was so severely burned by a gas-line explosion a few days ago, is nicely recovering from her injuries.

STONE MASONS—Several Newark stone masons left Sunday night for Fairmount, W. Va., to work on the new round house at that place.

A SON—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith of Gilbert street, are receiving the congratulations of all their friends over the arrival at their home on Gilbert street, of a ten pound baby boy.

COMMISSIONER—J. M. Lambert, succeeded William Gutridge as County Commissioner Monday, Sept. 15th. Mr. Lambert was sworn in several days ago, but owing to the death of his father-in-law he was unable to meet with the Board today.

IMPROVING—Charles Baker, who had both arms broken on Labor Day by falling from the switchback at Idlewild Park, was able to attend service at the First M. E. church on Sunday evening.

ORR REUNION—The annual reunion of the Orr family will be held on Saturday, September 27 at the grove near the Orr school house one and a half miles south of Linville. An invitation is extended to all relatives and friends of the Orr family.

WEDDING—Mr. Charles B. Kissell and Miss Ada Werner were united in marriage on Saturday evening at the First Presbyterian parsonage by Rev. Lester S. Boyce. The happy couple will make their home at 24 South Fourth street.

ALL WEEK—The Girard Stock company begins a week's engagement at the Auditorium tonight. On Wednesday night the company will give way to Quinn & Wal's minstrels.

KINDERGARTEN—Miss Beecher's Kindergarten opened Monday morning at the Central school house, 15 little boys and girls being enrolled the opening day.

BURIAL—The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Neibarger, who died on Sunday morning, will take place from Peasant chapel tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, and the interment will be made in the Shannon cemetery. The deceased was a maiden lady and was aged 53 years.

PRIZE WINNERS—Ed Larson sent a pen of his fine-bred Silver Laced Wyandotte chickens to the Muskingum county fair last week, and won first cock, first hen and first on breeding pen, being every first prize offered on matured Silver Wyandottes. Watch for his exhibit of both old and young stock at the Licking county fair.

NEWTON CHAPEL—The annual meeting of the members of Newton Chapel was held on Sunday with an all-day service. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson of Mississippi, preached a very able sermon in the morning, while Rev. Mr. Fisher, the pastor, preached in the afternoon. At the noon hour a big dinner was served in the grove. Dr. J. W. Alexander and L. H. Insko attended the morning service.

Wanted, For Rent, For Sale, page 6.

Constipation Cured.

To have perfect health the bowels should be kept open that the waste products may be eliminated. Otherwise the entire system is poisoned, causing Dyspepsia, Headache, Nervousness, Appendicitis, Liver Troubles and other ailments.

Lyon's Laxative Syrup

cures constipation of the very worst type and permanently, too. It is a mild action, is pleasant to the taste and does not hurt the stomach. It is the best laxative because it always relieves and cures constipation and its allied afflictions. Absolutely harmless—made of choice fruits and vegetable extracts. Ladies and children like it because pleasant to take. Money back from your druggist if not the best laxative you ever used. Just try it and see.

At all Druggists, 25 and 50 cents. LYON MEDICINE COMPANY, Louisville, Ky. HALL'S DRUG STORE.

WANTS

3 Lines 3 Times 25 cents

FOR RENT.

For Rent—Desirable rooms for light house-keeping near square. Also house. R. M. Davidson, 60 South Fifth street. 6-14-02

For Rent—A 10-room house on Beech street, near Everett's glass works, suitable for a boarding house. Also a barber shop. Enquire at Lieber's restaurant on Beech street. 9-1244t

FOR SALE.

For Sale—Second-hand bicycles, almost new, $5.00 and up. C. K. Patterson, 220 Union street. 9-1243t

For Sale—Good fire and burglar proof safe, 26x31x45 outside measurements; good as new; cheap if sold at once. Call at Advocate office.

For Sale—By D. L. White, one rubber-tire phaeton buggy, good as new, cheap. Money loaned on jewelry and chattels of all kinds. Antelope Block, Room 5, Newark. 9-1511m

For Sale—Horse city broke, rubber tire buggy, harness and spring wagon will sell at a bargain. Together or single. 243 Locust St. S. E. Rhoads. 9-13-02t

For Sale—We have for sale a 6-room house on Cottage street, $1,050; 6-room house on Hancock street, $1,150; 7-room house on North Fourth street, $1,200, $50 cash, balance same as rent. The Newark Real Estate and Improvement company, I. M. Phillips, Manager, No. 14 N. Park Place. 9-1502t

MISCELLANEOUS WANTS.

Ladies—Work for us on sewing machines at home. Material furnished. Good wages. Stamped envelope for particulars. Co-operative Sewing Company, Drawer J. Sta A, Boston, Mass. 9-1246t

Wanted—A good jobbing molder. Simpson Heater Co. 9-1503t

Wanted—A good girl for general house work. Pay good wages. 354 Eastern avenue. 9-1502t

Wanted—One, good all-round machinist, capable of running lathe. Also two men to run a drill press. Jewett Car Co. 9-1503t

Found—A lady's gold watch, at the Elks' Carnival. Owner can have same by calling at 53 Allen street, Newark, O. 9-1503t

Wanted—Reliable person to represent firm taking charge of mail order business and overseeing solicitors. Some traveling involved. Good salary and expenses. Address "X," care of Advocate. 9-1503t

Found—A package on West side of square. Owner can have same by calling at this office and paying for this notice. 9-13-02t

Found—A pocket book near the merry-go-round, at Idlewild Park, on Sunday evening. Owner can have same by calling at the park and paying for this advertisement. 9-1503t

Wanted—Man with single team to deliver and collect. No canvassing. $21.00 per week and expenses. $150 cash deposit required. Permanent. Manufacturer (a 91) Box 556, Phila. Pa. 9-13-06t

Situation Wanted—By an experienced grower of all kinds of fruit, vegetables and flowers. Could manage a large fruit farm. First class man for agent's place. Best of reference. Honest, sober and reliable. Address A. DuPlanty, Lock Box 536, Newark, Ohio. 9-1403t

NOTICE TO BIDDERS. Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the City Clerk at his office in Newark, Ohio, until 12 o'clock noon.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 15, 1902. for the furnishing all labor and material necessary for the construction of the proposed building for Fire Department, Corner North Fourth and Ash streets, according to the plans and specifications now on file in the office of the City Clerk.

By order of City Council. F. T. MAURATH, City Clerk. September 15, 1902. 9-1502t

The number of churches in Chicago, according to the city directory for 1902 is 666.

An Ordinance.

Extending the route of The Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company, Section 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of Newark, Ohio, that consent, and permission are hereby granted The Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain and operate a street railway with all necessary switches and turnouts on and over the following route, to-wit: Beginning at the north-east corner of the City Square, at the intersection of North Park Place with East Park Place; thence south along East Park Place to connect with the tracks of The Newark and Granville Street Railway Company; thence south on East Park Place with East Main street; thence south along East Park Place to connect with the tracks of The Newark and Granville Street Railway Company at the south-east corner of the City Square; thence south on Second street along and over the tracks of The Newark and Granville Street Railway Company to Franklin street; thence south on South Second street to the Paul-Hendall Station.

Section 2. The grant made in this ordinance is upon the terms and conditions and stipulations contained in the ordinance passed December 18th, 1899, granting to said The Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction Company, the right to construct, maintain and operate a street railway in said City of Newark.

Section 3. This ordinance shall be in force from and after its passage, and due publication.

Passed September 8, 1902.
HARRY W. ROSSELL, President.
F. T. Maurath, City Clerk.

Notice To Bidders.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the City Clerk at his office in Newark, O., until 12 o'clock, noon.

MONDAY, OCT. 13, 1902, for the excavation, preparing foundation and laying paving brick thereon and setting stone curbing on each side of street, and furnishing all material necessary for the completion of the work according to the plans and specifications on file at the office of the City Clerk for the improvement of Elm street from Locust street to Log Pond Run.

Bids shall be for either labor or material or for both, each must be separately stated with price.

Bids for paving brick shall designate the kind to be furnished and shall be accompanied with samples.

Each bid shall contain the name of each person interested in the same and shall be accompanied by a bond of one thousand dollars, signed by two real estate owners, one of whom must be a resident of Licking county, Ohio, or a certified check of equal amount, guaranteeing that if bid is accepted a contract will be entered into and the performance of it properly secured.

Bidders will be required to use the printed forms which will be furnished upon application.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

By order of the City Council of Newark, Ohio.

F. T. MAURATH, City Clerk.
Newark, Ohio, September 12, 1902

PENNSYLVANIA EXCURSIONS

REDUCED FARES.
Chance for Trips via Pennsylvania Lines at Small Cost.

COSHOCTON—Oct. 7th to 10th, inclusive, excursion tickets to Coshocton, account fair, will be sold at reduced rates from Dennison, Newark and intermediate ticket stations on the Pennsylvania Lines.

CHATTANOOGA—Excursion tickets to Chattanooga, Tenn., account Sherman Brigade Reunion, will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines, Sept. 16th and 17th. Detail information will be furnished by Pennsylvania Ticket Agents.

CALIFORNIA—Excursion tickets will be sold Sept. 28th to 30th, inclusive, to San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., account Meeting of National Wholesale Druggists' Association at Montgomery, Cal. For particulars apply to Pennsylvania Lines Ticket Agents.

DES MOINES—Low fares to Des Moines, Iowa, will be in effect via Pennsylvania Lines for the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F. meeting. For information about rates, dates on which tickets will be sold, and time of trains, apply to local Ticket Agents of Pennsylvania Lines.

G. A. R. AT WASHINGTON—Persons who expect to attend the 36th National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Washington, D. C., in October, or who may contemplate a sight seeing trip to the National Capital, should consult local ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Lines in regard to low fares, stop-over privileges, side trips, etc. Apply to J. L. Worth, Ticket Agent, Newark, O., or L. B. Freeman, D. P. Agt., Columbus, O.

A HARD HANDICAP.

THE town hall always has a crowd to hear my Uncle Jim. There is nobody else state that talks as well as him. But when he runs for office once I had to mourn his lot. Mine and another fellow's was. The only votes he got!

The man who beat him was a chap of ordinary mind. He wasn't particularly wise. Nor specially refined. And all he said was, "Howdy do!" In accents mild and bland. And all the work he ever did was shakin' some one's hand.

The voters said they tried to help The weak and not the strong. A man as smart as Uncle Jim Was sure to get along. That's why that man of average mind Finds life a joyful joke. And incidentally that's why My Uncle Jim is broke.

—Washington Star.

BOWSER'S WRINKLES

HE SUDDENLY DISCOVERS THAT THE CREASES MAKE HIM LOOK OLD.

Decides to Be Rid of Them at Once, Buys a Recipe From a "Professor" and Compounds Mixture That Nearly Destroys His Cat.

THEIR was a certain air of mystery and preoccupation about Mr. Bowser during the dinner hour the other evening, and Mrs. Bowser couldn't figure out whether he had invented a new bungalow for barrels or was going to try sleeping in a hammock for his rheumatism. They had returned to the sitting room, and he had been reading and smoking for a quarter of an hour when he quietly asked:

"What did you use to take the wrinkles off your face?"

"Why, I never had any yet," she replied.

"But women who do have wrinkles use something, don't they?"

"Yes. There are half a dozen sorts of flesh food, and they also have their faces massaged. How came you to think about wrinkles?"

"I—I was thinking of taking mine off," he stammered as he latched around uneasily. "I've got three or four across my forehead and lots of them at the corners of my eyes, and they must make me look ten years older than I am."

HE SAT DOWN AND TOOK THE CAT ON HIS KNEE.

"But they don't," protested Mrs. Bowser. "You have wrinkles, but they belong to a man of your age. You don't want to look like a boy, do you?"

"No. Neither do I want to look as if I came out of the ark. A woman came up to me on the street the other day and called me grandpa. It must have been these wrinkles that deceived her. Do I walk like an old goat?"

"Of course not."

"Any hump between my shoulders?" "No. You look just like what you are—a man in your prime. Wrinkles give dignity to a man of your age, and they also portray character. It is a matter of history that Cicero had wrinkles at thirty, and we know that Washington did at forty."

"What has Cicero or Washington to do with me?" sharply demanded Mr. Bowser. "We are living in an entirely different age. When I have to pull myself upstairs and have somebody feed me with a spoon, I'm willing to be called grandpa, but until that time arrives I propose to be what I am. I don't suppose I can grow a new crop of hair on this bald head, but I can chase these wrinkles off and fill up some of the hollows. You don't want folks to take me for your father, do you?"

"Who was talking to you today?" queried Mrs. Bowser after a silence, during which the cat came up the basement stairs with a grin on her face.

"Half a dozen different men."

"But who was talking to you about your wrinkles?"

"There was a man in the office to sell a recipe. He was a professor, I believe. At any rate, he had a good thing, and I bought it. He was a man fifty-five years old, and he hadn't a wrinkle on his face. Three applications took about an acre of them off."

"If it's such a good thing, why don't you go into the business of making and selling it?" she asked in a tone meant to be sarcastic.

"That's what I am going to do. I'll get somebody to handle it as a side line. I figure that it can be made for 10 cents a box and sold for 50 cents, and that's a good enough profit. I'm going to make up a batch of it this evening and give it a thorough trial. I brought home all the ingredients. If

Mrs. Bowser's warning on his mind, he slipped down into the kitchen and removed the grease with a dish towel, but the burning went on just the same. He drew a pan of cold water and laved his face and in doing so struck a dozen raw spots and yelled aloud.

"Well, has Bowser's Chaser chased them away?" queried a voice behind him, and he looked around to find that Mrs. Bowser had stolen softly down.

"The blamed stuff is eating the face off me!" he hoarsely whispered as he bent over the water.

"Yes? But the wrinkles will be removed, you know."

"Yes, I know. Come upstairs and I'll soak your face in sweet oil; also your head. Your face will probably be raw and blistered for weeks to come, and you may have a dozen new wrinkles to take care of, but you'll live through it and perhaps get another call from the professor. He may drop in to sell you a hair grower used by Nero when he was a hundred years old, and you'll buy it and become bald clear down to your shoulders."

M. QUAD.

THE BLAMED STUFF IS EATING THE FACE OFF ME!

I get up in the morning with half my wrinkles gone, you'll say it's a good thing, won't you?"

Mrs. Bowser realized that nothing short of the house being unroofed by a tornado would stop him from making that compound and giving it a trial, and she made no protests. When a man who is trending close to sixty begins to find fault with the wrinkles on his face, he is in no mood to argue the question. She quietly continued her reading while he descended to the kitchen and asked the cook for a tin cup and a hunk of lard.

"Is it dynamite you are going to make, sir?" she asked as she got ready to flee.

"Nonsense. You see these wrinkles on my face, don't you?"

"I do, sir."

"Well, I'm going to make a preparation to take them off. It will be called Bowser's Wrinkle Chaser, and I hope to get rich out of it. Three applications will do the trick."

"Yes, sir, but you'd better be a little careful, sir. I had a brother of fifty who put on something to remove wrinkles, and his face all screwed up until you thought he was smelling codfish all the time. They offered him $15 a week to go in a dime museum, but the dog faced man threatened to strike and kept him out of a job. It may not explode, sir, but I'll go up to my room until you get through experimenting."

Mr. Bowser had provided himself with what the recipe called for, and as the lard melted he poured the ingredients in and soon had his mixture complete. When a few drops of saffron oil had been poured in to give it a scent, he set the dish away in the icebox to cool and went upstairs.

"Well, there was no explosion or other calamity," he said as he sat down and took the cat on his knee.

"I should be careful of it," replied Mrs. Bowser. "Isn't there any old tramp around you could hire to let you experiment on him?"

"I'm not experimenting on tramps!" he shouted as his temper was touched by the spark. "You might just as well ask me to try it on the cat. Do you suppose I am ass enough to buy chloride of lime for a wrinkle remover? That professor had been in the business for thirty years. It was this very compound that removed the wrinkles from Napoleon's face when he was eighty-five years old."

"But Napoleon didn't live to be eighty-five."

"Then it was the emperor of Russia or Germany. I know it was some big gun or other. The stuff is all right. Bowser's Wrinkle Chaser will be known as the best thing out before another month has passed, and don't you forget it. You can go to bed now, and I'll come up after the stuff has got cool enough to apply. When you gaze into my face in the morning, you'll be surprised, and the children on this block will wonder where Grandpa Bowser has gone."

It was half an hour after Mrs. Bowser went upstairs before Mr. Bowser was ready to apply the Chaser. He removed coat, vest and collar and tie, and he applied the mixture with liberal hand as he stood before the glass. When he had plastered on what he thought was a proper quantity, he began the work of massage. In other words, he began rubbing as briskly as possible, and it wasn't long before the friction began to tell. There was a glow, followed by a burning and prickling, and for three or four minutes he believed those wrinkles were sliding off his face around to the back of his neck and falling on the floor to be eaten up by the cat. Then the burning grew worse, and he could almost feel his skin shriveling up under it. Having

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot. Then of a sudden he settled down, and we all heaved a sigh of relief. An hour before the last of him, however. An hour before midnight the odor of a whale suddenly saluted the nostrils of the men, and they looked to the windward to catch sight of a great black bulk on the water. It was Tom Bowline. Word was passed around and all hands turned up, and from 1 to 3 we were in a state of suspense. At about 3 o'clock the whale began lashing the water with his flukes. When he had churned an acre or more of surface to foam, he slewed around and headed straight for us, but miscalculated our speed and passed astern, though clearing the rudder by not more than five feet. As he rushed to leeward, swinging his head and thrashing the water, we luffed sharp up until we were heading due east. Whether he loomed up by sight or sound no man can say, but as he slewed around I saw that he would come head on for our stern. As he started on his mad rush the ship's head was brought due north again in hopes to avoid him, but he changed his course as well and came down on our port quarter.

Every soul aboard knew the ship was doomed. She was headed to starboard until almost as her beam ended, and the instant she settled back there was a rush for the boats. No one gave the whale further attention, but every effort was put forth to get the boats into the water as the ship was luffed into the wind. Her decks were awash as the last one got away, and that was about fourteen minutes after she was struck. When we came to look around for Tom Bowline, he had disappeared from sight, and no whaler or reported whaler was seen after that. It had always been generally believed that he received injuries in striking us that caused his death. We were picked up three days later by a Scotch whaler none the worse in health for our adventure, but the small for me which that rich cargo would have given every man if safely landed had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

A FIGHTING ... WHALE

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

I was one of the crew of the whaling ship Crosby when I came across a gigantic whale that had often been seen before, that had destroyed many lives. He had come to be known as Tom Bowline and was recognized by a V shaped scar on his head. The Crosby was to the west of St. Helena when he was raised by the lookout. Tom Bowline came to the surface with a rush and then lay wallowing about. Three boats were lowered, and the whale was recognized by his scar. The mate's boat had the lead and got within striking distance first. As soon as the harpoon entered the whale settled away like a rock and went down 350 feet. Then he turned and rushed for the surface like a wild locomotive, breaching his full length out of water and filling and swamping the mate's boat with the waves kicked up by his fall. He rested a moment and then slewed around and started for the boat. He caught it with a swing of his jaw and made splinters of it and killed three men at the same time. For five minutes the mate, who was supervising himself by an oar, was alongside the fish and rubbing against his body, but he finally pushed himself clear and reached one of the other boats. The monster had the three boats at his mercy, but for some reason was satisfied with the destruction of the first. Perhaps it was because the others remained perfectly quiet while he seemed to be searching for them. Fifteen minutes after destroying the boat he moved slowly away, and those who had escaped his fury returned to the ship. We were at this time over half full of oil.

One hundred and fourteen days later, when 400 miles west of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, in the south Atlantic, we cut in our last whale, cleared the decks of the tryworks and set our course for Salem. We were full to the hatches and thus far had made one of the best seasons on record. In about three days we had the ship cleaned up and most of the smoke and grease washed off our bodies, and we were about to begin painting when at noon on the fourth or fifth day after turning on our heel for home a whale suddenly breached right astern of us and not more than 300 feet away. His fall raised three or four waves, which pitched the ship about as if we were lying in a gale, and, though the monster settled away out of sight at once, we had identified him as Tom Bowline. It may seem queer to you to read that every man aboard, from captain to apprentice, was badly frightened as soon as it was known that our old enemy had, hunted us down, as it were. We had left him almost four months before at a point 2,000 miles away, and yet he had overhauled us as if he had been a steamer sent in search and posted as to our cruising ground. His breaching so near us was taken as evidence of his evil intentions, and some argued that he had meant to strike the ship.

All work was at once suspended, and the men were ordered to move around the decks on tiptoe. We hoped the leviathan had not seen us and that his breaching so close aboard was quite accidental, and after half an hour had passed away without further sight of him everybody began to feel easier. A man had just started aloft with a glass to scan the sea when the whale rose to the surface about a stone's throw to windward.

From that time on for five hours he swam with the ship, paying no attention to us, but maintaining his distance to a foot

